APPROVES POLICY OF ASSISTANCE

LONDON TIMES THINKS CANADA SHOULD AID IMMIGRANTS

Sees in Recent Statement by Dominion Minister Possibility of More Satisfactory Results

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The Times, commenting editorially on statements of Hon. J. A. Robb, Canadian Minister of Immigration, that plans are being laid by the Dominion Government in the expectation that immigration to Canada will show great increase and that it is the Government's intention to use the machinery of the Empire Settlement Act and of the Soldiers' Settlement Board to place farm workers and settlers to the best advantage, says this will go some way toward dispelling doubts which have been expressed recently here concerning the attitude of Canada.

"Even if every allowance is made for the depression from which Canada has suffered in common with other countries," the Times writes, "it is impossible to view the fact that only 167 British settlers crossed the Atlantic to Canada under the provisions of the Empire Settlement Act as anything but disappointing. Of these British settlers, 130 were boys who left this country under the Ontario Government's scheme."

"Admission as the entrance of the Provincial Government may be, the scheme cannot make headway unless it follows broad paths of Dominion co-operation, and Mr. Robb's pronouncement is a welcome sign that the coming year will tell a more heartening story."

The Times says that even in Western Canada it is candidly conceded that the British settler makes the best citizen of any new settlers, and it expresses the hope that the Canadian Government will satisfy itself that the British Isles are unable to supply a sufficient quota of settlers when it goes farther afield. It says immigrants from Central Europe tend to remain in jealous, exclusive communities, and says that there is a reasonable display of energy on the part of the Canadian authorities, both in Canada and in London, there seems to be no valid reason why both quality and quantity should not be obtained among the people of the British Isles.

The Times thus concludes: "No better beginning could be made to a new campaign of the Government for the tracing of settlers than a practicable move to assist British soldiers who fought shoulder to shoulder with men of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces."

ASK SAFEGUARDS FOR CANADA'S AUTONOMY

Daughters of Canada Appeal to Premier King to Insist on the Dominion's Rights

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—The Daughters of Canada, at a special meeting, endorsed the draft of a letter to be forwarded to Premier King, which was in part as follows: "The Daughters of Canada, organized in 1919, realize that the coming Imperial Conference is the most crucial one that has been held, one from which Canada will go forward to complete nationhood, or back to colonial status."

"Although there is no announced agenda of the conference, we believe that the assistance of the 'latter nations' in Imperial wars will be the chief topic for discussion."

"We submit that Canada has given more than enough assistance in wars which she has had no part in making; Canada requires her people at home, for the development of her great resources."

"We view with concern the trend of affairs in Europe and we note that hate is being whipped up that may lead to war between Great Britain and France. Should Canada take part in such a war, racial concord would become racial enmity—possibly to the extent of civil war in Canada."

"With one voice and with all our powers, we beseech you to use your great influence to the preservation of Canadian autonomy in all vital matters, believing that thus only may our country be saved from a colossal catastrophe."

ITALIANS SOON TO EVACUATE CORFU

Forces Will Move Before End of the Present Month—Greeks Will Salute the Allies

PARIS, Sept. 13.—Italy has agreed to evacuate the island of Corfu before the end of the present month.

ATHENS, Sept. 13.—It is understood here that the salute to the Allies required of Greece in the Janina murder reparation terms will take place on September 20. The country remains tranquil and is awaiting the fulfilment of the formalities demanded by the council.

The Government has not yet received official notice of Italy's reported intention of demanding reimbursement for the cost of the Corfu occupation. The official attitude here is that nothing can provoke Greece into war.

PRETORIA, South Africa, Sept. 13.—Speaking at the opening of the Transvaal Nationalist Party Congress, T. M. R. PLAN PROVINCIAL SECTION OF PARTY

Vancouver Labor Men Decide to Sink Differences and Co-operate in United Political Body

VANCOUVER, Sept. 13.—Determination to call a convention for the formation of a British Columbia section of the Canadian Labor party was expressed by a resolution at a gathering of about 100 Vancouver labor men and delegates to the Trades and Labor Congress this evening. The meeting was called by John Bruce, president, and James Simpson, secretary of the C.L.P., but was described by them as simply a consultative and advisory open meeting.

After a round table discussion in which all shades of opinion were expressed and the speakers manifested a desire to sink their differences and co-operate in a united political body, the meeting carried three resolutions. The first, moved by Delegate Rees and Burns, pledged the meeting to support the C.L.P. The second asked the British Columbia executive of the Trades Congress to call a delegate convention to form a provincial section of the C.L.P., and the third expressed approval of the proposed Empire Labor Congress to be held in London in 1924.

Secretary Simpson read a letter from Right Hon. Arthur Henderson, secretary of the British Labor party, calling for an expression of opinion on the proposed Empire Labor Congress, and the meeting recommended that the executive of the C.L.P. seek to have delegates in attendance.

W. Irvine, M.P. for East Calgary, addressed the meeting and it was suggested that another gathering might be held Friday evening to hear J. S. Woodsworth, M.P. of Winnipeg.

URGES EMIGRATION OF YOUNGER MEN

British Chambers of Commerce Will Have Suggestions to Make to Imperial Conference

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The executive council of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce in an exhaustive report issued today extend the welcome to the representatives of the Dominion, including India, attending the economic conference to consider the whole subject of inter-imperial trade.

The association, it is announced, has approved a number of suggestions and these have been submitted to the president of the Board of Trade. They include overseas settlement and immigration.

The association considers that efforts should be directed to assisting the emigration of young men, between twenty-two years old when, owing to the present system of paying by age, are employed in doing work which before was done by boys of fourteen to sixteen years. It is considered that present conditions are depressing the capacities of young men of eighteen to twenty-two years, and that it would be better if they emigrated to the Dominions, where they could render better service to the Empire.

Only One Opposition Group Recognized in Ontario House

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—The Mail and Empire announces this morning that Premier Ferguson has decided to recognize only one opposition group in the coming session of the Ontario Legislature—the Liberal—and that only the Liberal House leader will receive the opposition salary of $11,400 in addition to the regular indemnity.

The Mail says: "Such action is, of course, of primary significance because of its probable effect on the hitherto dominant of the U.F.O. group which remains in the House. In point of numbers it is the House's second strongest faction having twenty members against the Liberals' fourteen. It had thus looked forward to being ranked as an opposition group."

NEGOTIATE FOR WAGE REVISION

Advocate Placing of Export Tax Upon Raw Materials Going Outside the Empire

LONDON, Sept. 13.—For the first time in its history, the Bradford Chamber of Commerce has passed a resolution in favor of protection.

The resolution urged that the forthcoming imperial and economic conference should be asked to consider the advisability of putting on raw materials of which they have a monopoly, an export tax on those going to all countries outside the Empire.

Agent-General Wade Urges Financial Aid

OTTAWA, Sept. 13.—Negotiations for revision of wage scales and working conditions are proceeding between the railways and a number of crafts among their employees, and in two instances appeal has been made to the Labor Department for intervention. The two organizations which have appealed to the Minister of Labor are the maintenance of way employees and the telegraphers, both in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

In the case of the telegraphers, J. B. Coyne, K.C. of Winnipeg, has been appointed to represent the company, and David Campbell, of Winnipeg, to act for the men. In the case of the maintenance men, Mr. Campbell again represents the men, while R. T. Riley, Winnipeg, will act for the company.

Mr. Wade suggests as a remedy that if the difficulty is found in the inability of imperial service men to contribute 25 per cent of his total loan as required under the act, the Imperial Government should contribute this for him under the Empire Settlement Act.

Mr. Wade thinks that if the provisions of the two acts were thus blended a great many unemployed British ex-service men would find comfortable homes in Canada.

SEEKS ABOLITION OF THE SENATE

TRADES CONGRESS RESOLVES RED CHAMBER USELESS

President Moore Favors Reform of Upper House, But Conventions Hands for Extinction

VANCOUVER, Sept. 13.—The Dominion Trades and Labor Congress of Canada will continue to act as the legislative mouthpiece for organized labor independent of any political organization, but it urges all labor organizations to affiliate with the Canadian Labor Party.

This was the decision reached at today's session of the annual convention on the question of political action which gave rise to so much contentious debate on the question of political action on Tuesday. The resolution carried today was a substitute for the original recommendation, which was thought by some of the delegates not to be sufficiently clear.

The discussion in regard to the Congress Journal brought out the fact that the publication was in a bad way, there being only slightly more than 800 subscribers. An aggressive campaign to increase the subscriptions was agreed upon.

After the Senate

Recommendation that the Canadian Senate be abolished, was carried.

President Moore believed that abolition would bring a decisive victory, and that efforts at reform of the Senate would bring earlier results. He suggested an amendment to demand that the Senate be made an elective body.

Delegate Simpson, secretary of the executive committee, stated that it was felt that abolition was what was the real object aimed at. Reforms were all right, but ideas should be kept in view.

The resolution on political action, which was submitted on Tuesday and sent back to the committee for redrafting, was unanimously adopted in its amended form. It commits the Trades and Labor Congress to recognition of the Canadian Labor Party as the official labor party, and again urges all unions to affiliate.

Approves Appointment

Another report of the executive council was carried endorsing the appointment of President Tom Moore as the director of the Canadian National Railways, although the ideals of labor were not completely met. It was regarded as a forward step, however, on the part of the Government to give this measure of recognition to the organized workers.

The convention approved efforts to amend the Militia Act to the end that the only authorities permitted to requisition for training out of the militia in aid of the civil power should be either the municipal council of the district wherein riot occurs or is anticipated, or the government of a province; in either case those making requisition bearing the cost. It was also urged that the Federal Government should be given discretionary powers as to their compliance with the requisition. The proposal that educative efforts be directed against war was passed after some discussion.

While not opposing the recommendation, Malcolm Bruce, Regina, was of the opinion that it was not education that was wanted. The workers were all against war. The only effective means of combatting it was the general strike, and that was what the convention should support. The mere issuance of anti-war stamps, posters and pamphlets, as proposed, he declared, would not meet the situation.

Alderman E. Woodward, of Victoria, disagreed with Mr. Bruce. He said it was only too evident that education was needed, and the proposal of the executive council was along the right lines.

GRAIN EXPORTS VIA COAST WILL GROW

President of C.P.R. Believes Traffic Should Be Directed So as to Prevent Congestion

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., Sept. 13.—When interviewed here today, Mr. E. W. Healey, president of the C.P.R., was asked as to that company's attitude towards the development of the Western route via Vancouver as an outlet for Prairie grown grain. He replied:

"If steamship rates on grain from Pacific ports and from Atlantic ports continue on the same relative basis, we look for a steady increase in the amount of grain which will find an outlet through Vancouver. The railway company is neither hostile nor unsympathetic. The experience of the past two years has proven that to prevent congestion and the useless tying up of equipment, the permit system is necessary, and as far as I can determine it works out to the advantage of the producer and involves no loss of traffic to the seaport. The best evidence on the latter point is that no steamship has even had to wait an hour for a grain cargo at Vancouver through failure or fault of the railway company, and there is not the slightest evidence to support the view that to flood the railway terminals at the Coast and to choke the elevators there would stimulate traffic by that route. I should think that such conditions would have a contrary effect."

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Prof. Gilbert Murray, Regius Professor of Greek at Oxford University, and member of the League of Nations' international committee on intellectual co-operation, in a radio dispatch to the League of Nations in London, describes the Balkan situation as very dangerous. Dr. Murray says that unless the League of Nations intervenes general hostilities, involving Italy, Greece, Serbia, Bulgaria and Hungary, are certain to commence September 16. He adds that some of the military plans for the Balkan powers already have been decided upon.

Why "HIS MASTER'S VOICE"
VICTROLA dominates!

Victrola sound-boxes are of simple effective construction. No complicated parts to keep adjusted; just simplified and perfected to the finest degree by years of specialization. This is why this vital part of the instrument delivers every variation of tone in a pleasing, exact and perfect manner all the time—also one of the reasons why the world's greatest artists have chosen "HIS MASTER'S VOICE" Victrola as the only instrument capable of fully interpreting their great genius.

"HIS MASTER'S VOICE" is the voice of an endless programme of living entertainment, known as "The theatre of the Home"—and how appropriate! For whatever your mood—whatever the climatic conditions—the price of an orchestra chair is a mere pittance—and it is yours to say what entertainment shall unfold.

The imaginary curtain rises—a momentary hush—and then—it is the immortal voice of CARUSO singing "FOR YOU ALONE"—and true to the title of the song he is singing for YOU alone—You and YOURS comprise his audience.

An intermission—someone calls for modern melody—the "Great White Way" orchestra has entered your home—unseen—to play "CAROLINA MAMMY"—Your eyes have closed and you have difficulty in believing that these musicians are not indeed on a stage and that you have an orchestra seat in a REAL theatre.—It is just as though these living entertainers had been invited to YOUR home for YOUR special hour of happiness.

Such is the spell of "HIS MASTER'S VOICE" Victrola and ("HIS MASTER'S VOICE" VICTOR RECORDS)—they alone—are capable of giving you this sense of COMPLETE FULFILLMENT and perfect reproduction.

And this very perfection of performance—this very superiority—has influenced many to refer to all instruments as Victrolas.—It is a compliment which we look upon with disfavor for it not only defeats your best interests but ours as well.

For your protection every genuine Victrola bears our famous trademark "HIS MASTER'S VOICE"—make sure it is on the instrument you buy.

ODD FELLOWS HOLD TRIPLE CONVENTION

All Parts of Canada and United States
Will Be Represented at Big Gathering Next Week

CINCINNATI, Sept. 13.—Thousands of visitors and delegates are expected here during next week in connection with the triple convention of the various branches of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Sovereign Grand Lodge, the General Military Council and the Association of Rebekah Assemblies of the World. Cincinnati lodges are raising a fund of $50,000 for the purpose of entertainment.

Detroit Odd Fellows have made hotel reservations for 1,100, and more than 1,000 are coming from St. Paul and Minneapolis. Toronto members have reserved accommodations for 600, and orders for reservations have been coming in from all parts of Canada and the United States for blocks of from 50 to 500. Thousands of Cincinnatians will throw open their homes to accommodate those who cannot be taken care of at the hotels.

Price offers aggregating $15,000 for degree competition and drills have tended to induce entire lodges to come here for the convention, many of them arranging to bring their own bands. These may reach a total of thirty. With approximately twenty local bands, the visiting organizations will take part in the grand parade on Wednesday, September 19. The 147th Regiment Band, a world war organization, has been engaged as the official musical organization for the convention.

The programme includes addresses by a number of prominent persons. A dinner tendered by the local committee to the I. O. O. F. International Press Association will be a feature on the opening day. There also will be a public reception to Lucian J. Eastin, of St. Joseph, Mo., Grand Sire, and other officers and representatives of the Sovereign Grand Lodge. Mr. Eastin has recently returned from Europe, where he studied the condition of European Odd Fellowship, which is under the jurisdiction of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, and will make a report to the convention.

Newboys, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are being organized as an army to help the visitors to find their way about the city.

BOARD REFUSES TO DEAL WITH PARENTS

City Trustees Say Esquimalt School Board Must Be Responsible for Whole of High School Fees

In regard to payments for the education of Esquimalt students in Victoria High School, the City School Board wants the full fee from the Esquimalt School Board without having to collect any portion of it from parents.

A letter from the Esquimalt trustees was read at the meeting of the school board, stating that they would pay $15 of the fee imposed by Victoria, leaving the balance to be paid by the parents.

To this communication, the chairman of the city board had already authorized a reply, stating that the Esquimalt board would be expected to pay the full fee for any pupils attending the Victoria High School by its authority. The city's fees are $100 for all but the two technical courses, for which $110 is being charged. These amounts apply only to students from municipalities having high schools of their own.

The city board last night endorsed the action of the chairman, who pointed out that the city would not want to have to collect any portion of the fees from parents.

AN INTERFERING AGE

The Cincinnati Times-Star has hit upon one of the great weaknesses in humanity in pointing out the difficulty of otherwise sensible beings experiencing in mind their own business. We quote: "It seems the hardest thing in the world for some of our fellow citizens to mind their own business. They must always mind the other man's. If they devoted to self-improvement a tithe of the energies which they expend in forcibly improving someone else, the republic would be very near the Golden Age. As this beneficent shift of effort is not in their thought, it behooves the law to effect it by constraint, and by penalties that shall make them regret their abominable acts more than a little." It would be hard to expect the law to step in to put a period on man's activity in minding other people's business, unless that interference became a menace to society. There is no way, indeed, in which people can be stopped from persisting in making other people think as they do except by a broadening of education and a reduction in the fanatical viewpoint.

Men because of their penchant for talk fees, are becoming more and more gregarious. We are suffering from a plethora of organizations and associations, and sufficed by resolutions and demands. We are losing the power of independent thought based on a silent and prolonged study of the experiences of the past. The newspapers are, perhaps, to blame because they permit almost any individual, no matter what his paucity of intelligence, to rush into print on so many occasions when he is accomplishing no good and serving no end save to uncover his own weakness and to use up a little white paper and printer's ink. The world is one great forum, with a babel of tongues. There are too many talking and writing without thinking, and too few thinking without talking or writing. One thing that the spread of democracy has done is to loosen the floodgates of verbosity.

What a splendid world this would be if everyone minded his or her own business. It would be a world of great hearts and concentrated self effort, and in the aggregate a hundred times more would be accomplished in such a world than is being done today. Men desert their businesses and professions to hold meetings and reunions so that they may discuss purposes and policies, the discussion of which properly belongs to the elected representatives of the people. There is a conflicting duality of effort in too many of the purposes of life. Organizations are created too often for the sole desire of bringing individuals into public prominence so that thereby they may be helped in a business way, or else be kept in the limelight for the object of satisfying political ambition. What an aggregation of hypocrites we are. We make the minding of other people's business a fetish and grumble because our own business does not flourish to our liking, and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred it does not flourish simply because we do not give it enough attention. Much that is wrong with the world today, and many of the causes that contribute to whatever lack of progress we deplore, may be summed up in the phrase that we do not mind our own business enough and interfere too much with the other fellow's. We can never have anything like a Golden Age on earth until we concentrate on self-improvement. With the vast majority of individuals, both in a material and moral sense, it is a case of "physician heal thyself."

HEALTHIER WOMANHOOD

It is noted in different parts of the world that there is a gradual disappearance of chlorotic anemia among young women. In some places it is attributed to improved conditions of employment and to more athleticism and fresh air. There is another cause also, and that is that young women of the present day do not go in for the tight lacing of the past. Dr. E. Halford Ross, who was health officer in Egypt from 1905 to 1910, says that during that time he noticed that young Mohammedan women who did not wear corsets did not suffer from anaemia, while young Christian Syrian women who adopted European fashions did. Relaxation of tight-lacing, he believes, has had much to do with the reduction of anaemia during the present century in those countries where the change to the natural waist line has gradually taken place. The compressed and marked livers of a past generation must have had an ill effect on blood formation and circulation, in the opinion of Dr. Ross.

The British figures of chlorosis show that the percentage of cases in 1908 was 6.6, whereas in 1914 it had dropped to 3.1, and in 1917 to 1.5. A similar fall has been observed in Sweden, France, in Austria and in America. Chlorosis is an exaggeration of a normal condition rather than a disease. Its disappearance indicates an improvement in the general health of womanhood throughout the world. It is the outcome of the insistent demand for an outdoor life and regular exercise. Golf and other games have been a potent factor in health improvement. Few games can be played by those who indulge in tight lacing. Chlorosis, or what was known as the "green sickness," is yielding to more rational methods of life.

CANCER SCOURGE

A memorandum issued by the British Ministry of Health deals with the cancer scourge. It points out that in the space of two generations the recorded mortality from cancer has trebled. This increase, it says, cannot wholly be accounted for by longer life or better diagnosis. It appears that the death rate from cancer is not increasing for males up to 45 and for females up to 60. The most rapid increase is occurring in extreme old age. The memorandum is well worth wide publicity, and is indicative of the strenuous attempts now being made to awaken the British people to the danger of the disease. It is especially emphasized that there should be early recognition of cancer and also of pre-cancerous states. The public should realize that cancer in its early stages is almost invariably unaccompanied by pain and is sometimes painless throughout. Since this is the case, the value of periodical overhauls by a doctor becomes accentuated. There is a wide but unsupported belief that cancer is due to diet, but the medical fraternity is still undecided on this aspect. The whole question of the disease has not yet been studied sufficiently long in the light of the great increase in its incidence. The increase, however, is so pronounced that it has become a greater menace to humanity than is tuberculosis, which means that there is a grave duty imposed on local authorities to tell the people about every preventive measure that can be taken.

ON ARMISTICE DAY

The suggestion has gone out that on the celebration of Armistice Day one common sentiment should be expressed in the same words throughout the Empire. There is no necessity that any special piece of prose or poetry should be written for the occasion, since there are sentiments expressed in words long preserved that cannot be equalled by modern pens. The idea is to have some thoughts impressed on the minds of all who commemorate the anniversary which now possesses such far-reaching significance for the people of our race, and a Toronto gentleman, Mr. Alexander Fraser, has suggested that the following striking quotation from Pericles' oration should be read everywhere in the Empire on Armistice Day:

But each one, man by man, has won imperishable praise, each has gained a glorious grave—not that sepulchre of earth wherein they lie, but the living tomb of everlasting remembrance wherein their glory is enshrined, remembrance that will live on the lips, that will blossom in the deeds of their countrymen the world over. For the whole earth is the sepulchre of heroes; monuments may rise and tablets be set up to them in their own land, but on far-off shores there is an abiding memorial that no pen or chisel has traced; it is given, not on stone or brass, but on the living heart of humanity. Take these men, then, for your examples. Like them, remember that prosperity can be only for the free, that freedom is the sure possession of those alone who have courage to defend it.

Writing on the subject of education, The Florida Times-Union says: "The most vital problem before humanity today is a true system of education. It is only as we train individuals and peoples to think, to use their minds and all their powers to the highest efficiency, that we shall find any adequate solution of the moral, economic, mental, social, political and industrial problems that confront us. If the educators of the past had not failed in their great task, the world would not be in the condition it is in today, for with the parents and educators rests the formation of character. Our ideals in education are wrong, our aims and purposes in teaching are wrong."

Figures dealing with the Suez Canal show a steady increase of trade through that waterway. The tonnage of vessels passing through last year was 20,743,245 tons as compared with 18,118,999 in 1921 and 17,574,637 in 1920. The figures for 1922 constitute a record, being an increase of 468,125 tons as compared with 1921, the best year hitherto. These figures constitute a striking reply to those who are endeavoring to show that world trade is decreasing.

Australia is adopting very conservative steps in instituting the new capital at Canberra. At a cost of £250,000 it is estimated that the requirements of the Australian Parliament will be met for fifty years. We have more exaggerated ideas in this country, where one Provincial Government Buildings alone cost $10,000,000, and where our Federal Buildings have probably cost up to date some $40,000,000.

Among early races the cross was the usual form of military punishment.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

There was a crowd of people at the band concert in Beacon Hill Park on Sunday afternoon, probably the largest attendance of the season. It was a particularly beautiful day, even for this part of the world, where we are accustomed to and perhaps spoiled by bright and balmy weather during the Summer season. The sun shone through the trees with more than usual splendor. It was a mellow, golden sunshine, the kind we are accustomed to on this part of the Pacific Coast, not the pale blue, penetrating thing of Eastern America, that strikes people down and leaves them prostrate. Our sunshine is beneficent and life-giving; and how the children, there in a great multitude and in high spirits after their season on the beaches, how wholeheartedly they enjoyed it.

Bandmaster Miller seems to be blessed in the musical talent at his command. Every man, from the piccolo round to the cornet, seems to be a soloist. Even Drums, or some one very close to him, astonished every one on Sunday. While the band was rendering one of the selections on the programme the solo part was suddenly and unexpectedly taken by what seemed to be the voice of a boy soprano or by an alto with an entrancing sweet voice. The effect upon the crowd was almost magical. The children stopped their play instantly. The chronically gregarious suddenly ceased their conversation. Older people put their hands to their ears lest a single note should be lost. One terrified dog stopped in his career of enjoyment as if on the word of command from his master, cocked up one ear and sat at attention; and when he could not clap his hands with the rest of the concert at the conclusion of the piece, he barked expressions of his appreciation with all the force of his lungs.

Whatever the instrument was that thus greatly pleased the multitude, it was not big enough to attract attention. It was not of shining brass nor of bright silver. It had not a flaring bell nor innumerable keys. It appeared to be operated upon the principle that governs the reproduction of sound by a trombone. Possibly its scale and its repertoire are limited. Anyhow, its notes were true and its tone sweet, and it pleased the crowd greatly.

But, as usual, there is a fly in the ointment of enjoyment. The season is drawing to a close and presently these concerts must cease. They cannot be carried on in the park very much longer; and bands with a large proportion of the instruments made of brass are not adapted to chamber music. It would be a good thing for the public, and possibly a profitable thing for the city, if the very capable musicians in both of the bands and of all musical organizations could be induced to co-operate in giving Sunday concerts in which the less strident tones of the brass instruments were toned down to harmonize with their environment.

The British labor leader who is at present paying a fraternal visit to Canada has high ideals. He says the ultimate goal of labor in the Old Land is a six-hour working day, and that some day, not so very remote, the labor party will be the governing party there.

The old order is no longer satisfactory to aspiring human beings. We are all working and striving towards that land known as Utopia, and it is more difficult to reach than the Eternal City so alluringly portrayed by John Bunyan. If labor were given a six-hour day, its heart probably would still pant like that of the hart for the water brook for an even shorter working day. Mankind never is, but is always going to be, blessed.

We can remember the time, and it does not seem so very remote either, when men worked ten hours a day, and did not ask for double pay when they worked several hours more. And then the hearts of men and women seemed to be much lighter and their moods much gaylier than the hearts and moods of the working men and women of the present day. We fear it is still true that human happiness has nothing whatever to do with circumstances or environment; it is a condition of the mind.

When men have an abundance they still want more. Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller, "rich beyond the dreams of avarice," are still adding to their stores of wealth. The prices of motor cars and of gasoline have not been materially reduced.

The aspirations of labor are perfectly legitimate; but in fixing the length of the working day the ability of the employer to pay must be taken into consideration. If he be taxed beyond his ability to pay, his works will close up and his employees will be given an even shorter working day than six hours. Labor, in the prosecution of its programme, must take into consideration the conditions in other parts of the world. The circumference of the earth, it must be remembered, has been considerably reduced by the agency of the steamboat and the railway train, not to speak of machines that are flying through the air.

There is no limit to the working hours of the German workman, and it is doubtful whether the Chinese at home have ever heard of the eight-hour day. Germany is a strong competitor of Great Britain in every line of industry, and she is expected to become stronger when she ceases her philanthropic with the patience of other nations, meets her obligations and settles down to business. China is not a serious competitor of Great Britain now, but she may become so if labor, by unreasonable exactions, compels capital to seek refuge in countries where there is some reasonable assurance of its receiving a return on its investments.

The other day at one of the graded schools, while the children were out at recess, the teacher heard a wall of sorrow so up from one of the little boys, she went out to comfort him, and drawing him to one side asked him what the trouble was.

"I want to play with Sally Rogers and the other boys won't let me. They won't let me talk to her, and they won't let me sit down by her, or have anything to do with her."

"Why is that?"

"Well, we're playing society, and make out like we're all at a big party or ball."

"And why can't you make yourself agreeable to Sally as well as the others?"

"Why, they make me play that I'm Sally's husband every time."

FANCY IN NUBIUS

O, it is pleasant, with a heart at ease,
Just after sunset, or by moonlight skies,
To make the world about me seem a place,
Or let the earthy passions of the soul
Or a friend's fancy, or with head bent low,
And cheek afloat, see rivers flow of gold,
And then, when the sun has set, and the stars
From mount to mount, through cloudland,
Or, listening to the tale with closed eyes,
To feel the heart of the Chinese stand,
By those deep sounds, pressed with inward light,
Behold the land and the Odeyssey
Rise to the swelling of the voiceless soul.

By the Way—

(Copyright, 1923, North American Newspaper Alliance)

THE phoenix is a fabulous sacred bird of the Egyptians. According to the legend told to Herodotus, the bird came from Arabia every 100 years, bearing his father embalmed in a ball of myrrh, and buried him in the desert. When he died, Herodotus says that pictures of the bird represent it with golden and red plumage, closely resembling an eagle in size and shape.

According to Pliny, there is only one phoenix at a time, and he, at the close of his long life, builds himself a nest with twigs of casia and frankincense, on which he dies. From his corpse is generated a worm which grows into the young phoenix.

Tacitus says that the young bird lays his father on the altar in the desert, and burns him there. But the most familiar form of the legend is where the phoenix is described as an Indian bird which subsists on air for 500 years, after which, having his wings withered, he flies to Heliopolis, enters the temple there, and is burned to ashes on the altar. Next day the young phoenix is born, and he grows up, and he matures the priest and dies away.

A LOST CHORD

Seated one day at the organ,
I was weary and ill at ease,
And my fingers wandered idly
Over the noisy keys.

I do not know what I was playing,
Or what I was dreaming then;
But I struck one chord of music
Like the sound of a great amen.

It flooded the crimson twilight,
Like the close of an angel's palm,
And it lay on my fevered spirit
With a touch of infinite calm.

It quieted pain and sorrow,
Like love overcoming strife;
It seemed the harmonious echo
From our discordant life.

It linked all perplexed meanings
Into one perfect peace,
And trembled away into silence,
As if it were loth to cease.

I have sought, but I seek it vainly,
That one lost chord divine,
Which came from the soul of the organ,
And entered into mine.

It may be that death's bright angel
Will speak in that chord again—
It may be that only in heaven
I shall hear that grand amen.

SCHOOL COSTS ARE BELOW LAST YEAR

Board Loans Difference to Date Is $17,368—Buildings and Grounds Absorb More Money

The report made to the City School Board by its finance committee, showed that expenditures to date had been $17,368 less than for the same period last year. The estimated expenditures for 1923 are $462,368, while the amount spent to date is $271,748 as compared with $289,103 for the same time in 1922.

Some of the items in which expenditures are below last year's figure for the same period follow: this year's figures being given first and those of 1922 second: Salaries, $159,282, $208,912; technical costs, $627, $1,350; domestic science, $504, $881; manual training, $548, $854; educational supplies, $253, $1,253; furniture and apparatus, $494, $2,801; janitors' salaries, $18,692, $21,058; fuel, light, power, gas, water, $12,781, $16,837.

The expenditure for repairs, replacements and upkeep of grounds has been greater than last year so far, the figures being $7,454, as compared with $7,128. The wages of workmen total $24,868 to date, as compared with $27,741 last year.

PROMISES REFORMS IN HANDLING OF LIQUOR

Mr. W. J. Bowser, Leader of Opposition, Says Attorney-General Has Abolished Nothing Except Society

PRINCE RUPERT, Sept. 13.—After criticizing the financial policy of the Provincial Government and failing of rapidly mounting debt and increased fixed charges, W. J. Bowser, Leader of the Opposition, at a well-attended meeting here, said that if in office he would reduce the staffs in the liquor stores thus lessening the overhead charges and he would sell brands of whiskey for which $5 was now paid for $3.50 or $4 a bottle. He would engage a good purchasing agent at a salary that would place him beyond temptation and sell good liquor.

He scored Attorney-General Manson, branding him as "this moralist" and claimed that it was possible to close down the clubs by refusing to supply them with beer. Manson had told of things he would abolish but had abolished nothing except temperance and sobriety. The Leader of the Opposition said that if the people elected him there would be decency in liquor administration. He had had twenty years' experience as a legislator and had sat for one constituency during all that time in spite of the fact that for three elections he had been living away from it.

He said that experienced men were needed at Victoria. Had there been experienced men there would not have been fifty million dollars spent in the short time the present government had been in power. The Premier, he claimed, had been drawing a red herring across the trail in regard to freight rates. When Mr. Oliver was hurried from power he would take up the freight rates question where the Premier left off. He would endeavor to bring about stability and tranquility, and do away with the squandering mania and also discourage the craze for new legislation.

He would, if elected, cut off a million dollars from the civil service expenditure, which he claimed he could do by applying business methods. Reserves on oil and mining lands must be lifted. The country was in a bad state financially, but it could be redeemed and there was only one party and that was the Conservatives which could do it.

Mr. Pooley dealt largely with the public accounts probe conducted during the last session of the Legislature.

VICTORIA

At the very gate of the farthest West is the loveliest place I know:
It lies so close to the waters' breast
That it dreams in its ebb and flow.

And its face is turned to the opal light
Of the mountains over the way,
Where the mists and shadows hold
The right

To guard their majesty.

Bright gorse is twined about its head,
A city crowned with gold;
The namesake of a queen long dead,
Whose memory still we hold.

And so this lovely city dreams
Beside the Western sea,
A place where sunlight lives and gleams,
The dearest home to me.

—Victoria Hopkins.

National Tastes in Hymns
Nations have their own tastes in hymns, and America's favorite seems to be "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

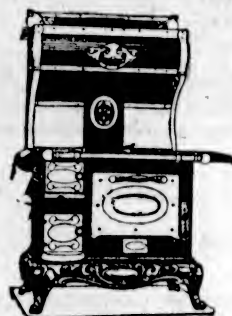

At the funeral service of President Harding it was used twice. I remember that, when the Titanic went down, the American passengers were singing this hymn. The words have often been attributed to Mrs. Beecher Stowe, the authoress of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," but that can hardly account for its popularity in America. The hymn was really written by Mrs. Flower Adams, an English poetess of the early 'nineties. We know it well in this country, few are better known, but it cannot compare in popularity with some others. Across the border, for instance, there is nothing that can beat the Hundredth Psalm—"All people that on earth do dwell—If one can say that a psalm is also a hymn, South of the Tweed the choice, so far as popularity goes, would seem to lie between "Ade, With Me," "Lead, Kindly Light," and "O God, Our Help in Ages Past." MARKED PROGRESS IN LOUISIANA SCHOOLS

Twenty Years Have Completely Altered Lafayette Parish and Made It a Model

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Decendants of the French-Canadians, who still form a large part of the population of Lafayette parish, Louisiana, on the rich bottom lands of the Mississippi River, have developed a system of schools which is the most progressive in that state, according to a rural school leaflet, published by the Department of the Interior through the Bureau of Education.

Twenty years ago, the leaflet points out, twenty-six one-teacher schools constituted the entire educational system of the parish. Up to that time French was the principal language taught in the rural public schools. If fruits of these conditions may be judged by the 1920 census, they are the illiteracy of approximately a third of the white people of the parish and almost three-fourths of the negroes. Interpacked among the Acadians are settlers of Spanish descent from the days of the Spanish domination of Louisiana. In the western part of the parish is an English settlement established years ago by immigrants from Georgia and the Carolinas. Immigration can in no way be blamed for the high rate of illiteracy, as only 6.9 per cent of the population is foreign born.

Changed educational conditions are marked, the leaflet continues, by the use of English as the teaching medium in the schools, and the reduction of one-room schools of the parish to two. Nineteen up-to-date consolidated schools now furnish 147 trained teachers for the parish enrollment of 4,440 white pupils. High school education is within reach of all these children, for six of the consolidated schools provide four years of high school, while three others supply two years. Daily transportation by motor bus or horse wagonette is furnished at a cost of 10 cents each per day to 1,400 children. Very few of the children have to be transported more than six miles.

Lafayette parish is ranked by its superintendent as holding place educationally with the leading parishes in the state. With the exception of Orleans parish, it is the most densely populated, though it is 74.5 per cent rural; its only incorporation with more than 2,500 people is Lafayette City, 9,000 population. Lafayette parish claims the honor of being the first in the state to vote a

GONZALES HILL TOP

REVERTS TO OAK BAY

Municipality Is Owner of Over Four Acres There—Nineteen Resumptions From Last Year's Sale

As the result of failure of the owners to redeem the property, about four and a quarter acres of land on the summit of Gonzales Hill and fronting on Denison Road have come into the possession of the Municipality of Oak Bay. The land reverted to the municipality at the tax sale last year. Recently the owners offered to sell it to Oak Bay for park purposes, but the council knew it would get the property in any event unless the arrears were paid, and so refused to make the purchase. When the time for redemption expired at the beginning of this week, Oak Bay secured the land, which it has been suggested by residents, should be set aside for park purposes.

Of the 188 properties put up for tax sale in 1922, 19 were redeemed.
At the sale 32 parcels were sold, while 18 were disposed of subsequently. As the result of the closing of the redemption period this week, the municipality comes into possession of 128 parcels which reverted last year.

The final figures for this year's sale, which commenced last Saturday, were issued by Municipal Clerk
R. F. Blandy yesterday. The tax sale list contained 87 parcels, of which 17, having a total assessed value in land of $7,850 and improvements, were sold, the amount received being $1,602.41. The upset prices of the 50 parcels which reverted to the corporation total $2,449.79, with an assessed value of $2,140.

The Fate of Italy Is Hanging in the Balance

This map shows the situation now developing in Eastern Europe. Italy, by her seizure of Corfu and other islands, is attempting to close the Adriatic, making it virtually an Italian lake. But Jugoslavia has been guaranteed access to the sea by the League of Nations. France is also assessing new and important proportions in the present struggle. If Mussolini was in his plans for conquest, the League of Nations may be destroyed; and if he fails, Italy, which is united only by the strong rule of the Fascist, may be disrupted by Mus-solini's fall from leadership. Grave issues for Europe, and perhaps for the whole world, are at stake in the Adriatic.

BOARD AGAINST UNION'S MOVE

TRUSTEES OPPOSE COUNCIL
CONTROL OF SCHOOLS

Will Ask B.C. Trustees' Association to Fight Municipality's Body
on This Point

A resolution asking the British Columbia Trustees' Association to oppose the efforts of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities to have the control of the schools placed under the municipal councils was passed unanimously by the City School Board yesterday. The resolution was moved by Trustee P. H.
Brown, who declared that as the trustees were chosen by the same electorate as were the Mayor and Council, the board was capable as they were of handling school matters economically. The resolution passed read as follows:

"Whereas at the recent meeting of the Union of Municipalities, a resolution was passed requesting the Government to give to the city councils of the various municipalities full control over the affairs of their respective school boards; and
"Whereas the interests of education demand that the schools shall be maintained at least at their present state of efficiency; and
"Whereas this efficiency depends in great part upon securing and holding some of the best teachers;

A Special Business
"Whereas the selecting of suitable teachers as well as the administration of the schools in general is a special business that requires great care and preparation on the part of some committee of citizens, selected for such work;

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the British Columbia Trustees' Association be asked to express its disapproval of the above resolution."

When the resolution was originally placed before the board, it contained the following in the preamble in addition to the above: "Whereas the avowed intention of the Corporation of the City of Victoria in endeavouring to obtain control of the schools is to reduce expenditures, irrespective of consequences."

At the suggestion of Trustee Christian Sivertz, this portion was struck out. Trustee Beckwith said that while its insertion was justified on the basis of statements made by members of the City Council, it was not always well to take these seriously. Trustee Brown declared that the decision, but also declared that the sentiments of the aldermen were as stated. Only that morning, he said, one of the Council members had told him there were hundreds of teachers walking the streets of Victoria looking for work, and the salaries should be reduced.

Citizens Union
The resolution in reference to the stand taking by the Union of Municipalities was seconded by Trustee Beckwith, who remarked that the Union sometimes did not have much to do and so had free time for discussions that evoked such resolutions as that objected to by the board.
He thought the time of the organization would be better spent trying to unite the people of the various municipalities instead of dividing them. The great need in British Columbia was co-operation. He did not think that the council of the larger centres desired to handle school business. Aldermen were complaining of too much work already.

Trustee Walter Walker supported the resolution, saying that he had served on the City Council, and was now in his second year as trustee, and believed that the latter position required the most work although it was unpaid.

FURTHER REMAND DELAYS DRUG CASE

Much-Adjudged Charges Against Mounted Policemen Set for Trial
Next Week

Indications of unusual undercurrents in the pending prosecution of the Vancouver officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, W. L.
Smith and F. W. Eccles, charged with illegal possession of opium, became more marked today, when the police court yesterday, when the much-remanded case was once more stood over, on what was said to be the request of Attorney-General Manson.

Mr. J. D. Pattullo, K.C., appearing for Smith and also for the third person accused, Frank Williams, a longshoreman, whose real name is said to be Permande, said that there had been newspaper hints that Ottawa officials had attempted to suppress the prosecutions. Counsel depressed the reports, and said he doubted whether such a word as "suppression" had ever been used in court.

This brought City Prosecutor
Harrison to his feet with the sharp rejoinder that if his learned friend wished to enter upon that phase of the matter, he would give him a complete answer.

"Suppression" Was Word
"I was not misquoted at all," said
Mr. Harrison. "The word was used in this court, and it was used by me."

Magistrate Jay thought that no good could come of a controversy upon the point, but the court wished it to be understood that it was desirable that the prosecution should proceed next Wednesday, the date agreed upon between contending counsel.

Mr. Harrison raised the question of further remand by informing the magistrate that since the remand proceedings of the previous day he had been called into consultation with Attorney-General Manson. Mr. Pat-tullo and Colonel Wroughton, commanding officer of the R.C.M.P. in British Columbia, had been present at the interview. The Attorney-General had requested that he be supplied with certain information.
As a matter of courtesy to Mr. Manson, the city prosecutor said he had consented to the remand asked for;
but his own position was still that the information sworn to was such that there must be a trial of the charges in open court.

Two Defence Lawyers
Mr. Pattullo confirmed this account of the posture of affairs as it concerned Attorney-General Manson, and gave his assurance that the defence would be ready for trial next Wednesday. A further reason for the remand, as given by Mr. Pat-tullo, was that the defence of Eccles, the second of the mounted police officers charged, had been entrusted to Mr. J. A. Russell, of Vancouver, who had not yet had time to familiarize himself with the allegations.

Mr. Pattullo made further reference to the defence which had been previously hinted at by Mr. G. H. R.
Heisterman, counsel for the defence in the previous proceedings. It was true, said counsel, as it had been reported in the press, that the defence would be that the R.C.M.P. officers, at the time of their arrest in this city some three weeks ago, had been engaged in their proper work for the detection and suppression of the illicit drug traffic, and were at that time acting under the orders of superior officers.

The ratio of males to females is higher for the farm population than it is for the total population except in three states.

nal package. Mix fresh as wanted.

COURT OF APPEAL

Before Mr. Justice Martin, of the Court of Appeal, sitting in Chambers yesterday, further argument was advanced in the case of Ininger vs.
Cunningham, in which the defendant,
appellant, is asking for a stay of execution of the judgment against him, pending appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The plaintiff, Mr. Robert Ininger, sued Mr. Clarence Cunningham for failure to perform the agreement by which the defendant was given an option to purchase property, the main clause of which agreement bound the defendant to develop the claims by driving a tunnel. Mr. Justice Murphy gave judgment on the basis of $18 a foot for the unperformed work, the total damages amounting to about $22,000. The judgment was confirmed by the defendant's appeal to the Court of Appeal. Mr. Justice Martin has ruled that there shall be a stay of execution, pending the further appeal of the amount of accrued interest.

Mr. Ernest Miller appeared for the plaintiff-appellant; and Mr.
H. B. Robertson, K.C. for the defendant-appellant.

HOLIDAY COMPLAINT RECEIVED BY MAYOR

A letter from the Chamber of Commerce, objecting to his action in calling for a half-holiday on Thursday afternoon last week in order to give the citizens an opportunity to visit the Exhibition was received by Mayor Hayward yesterday. In commenting upon it, he said that it had been in practice in former years for the Mayor to declare a half-holiday during Fair Week and he was simply following precedent. He had been anxious to aid the Exhibition, as much as possible. While it had been claimed that as Monday was a holiday anyway, another one on Thursday was not necessary, the exhibits were not all in place on Labor Day.

GREATER TOURIST TRADE NEXT YEAR

OFFICIAL PREDICTS TRAVEL WILL BE QUADRUPLED

Mr. Oliver Hollingsworth, Publicity Bureau's Representative at Spokane, Reviews Work

Predicting that the tourist trade to Victoria, and Vancouver Island next season will be quadrupled over that of this summer, and emphasizing the need of increasing the Publicity Bureau's efforts to attract visitors to this city, Mr. Oliver Hollingsworth, of Victoria, who has been the Spokane representative of the Victoria and Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau during the past three months, spoke to The Colonist last night on his return from his labors in that city.

Mr. Hollingsworth expressed confidence that next summer would be the greatest year for tourist trade in the history of the Northwest, and pointed to Spokane and other cities that are realizing the value of encouraging tourists to visit their cities and are organizing widespread campaigns to secure finances to spend more money than ever before in advertising. The city of Spokane, said Mr. Hollingsworth, is certain that it will raise the required fund, as its businessmen believe that the tourists spend daily in that city eleven dollars per head.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railroads have combined in a big plan to advertise the Pacific Northwest, and are spending jointly over a million dollars for the purpose. Mr. Hollingsworth stated that he will raise the required fund, as its businessmen believe that the tourists spend daily in that city eleven dollars per head.

Frederick's Victoria's Beauty

Mr. Hollingsworth had the distinction of being the only Publicity Bureau representative located in Spokane, and he was constantly busy in meeting tourists and showing them the attractions of Victoria and Vancouver Island before they returned to their homes.

While in Spokane, Mr. Hollingsworth was supplied by the bureau with much literature advertising Vancouver Island, but the demand for it became so great that the bureau was unable to keep him supplied. Mr. Hollingsworth stated that next year the amount of literature that he would require in Spokane would be four times as large as this year. He said that the tourists instead of making a visit to the island merely a side trip, are making it their objective, and many will come next year and spend a fortnight or longer.

"The advertising that the Victoria and Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau has done this year has been second to none in America. The quality of their booklets and posters and their methods of advertising have been beyond comparison. Many of the tourists in motor through the Northwest were impressed by the 'Follow the Birds to the Spotted Owl' billboards that adorn the highways as far as Idaho. The importance of publicity was borne out every day, and I feel convinced that the bureau cannot go too strong on it," Mr. Hollingsworth declared.

Leaving Victoria for Spokane on June 9 last, Mr. Hollingsworth made himself known to the Chamber of Commerce and Automobile Association in that city, and in the afternoon he addressed several meetings on the subject of "Development of Tourist Traffic" before the convention of the advertising clubs of the Pacific Coast. At this time he outlined the bureau's plan of advertising the attractions of Vancouver Island, and told of the methods that were being employed on this side of the line in an endeavor to bring tourists to Canada.

Mr. Hollingsworth spoke very highly of the co-operation that he had received from Mr. Frank Gullbert, secretary of the Good Roads League, and Mr. J. H. Gullbert, secretary of the Automobile Association of British Columbia, and his efficient staff. He was accorded every facility, and was privileged in being the only person permitted to canvass the tourists in the Spokane area. He was able to get into touch with the motor tourists who were coming West. He visited all the hotels, and there interviewed tourists and placed before them the literature that was a pleasure and residential report.

"The class of publicity work conducted by the local bureau in Spokane fully justified itself. Many people were undecided whether to visit Vancouver Island because they did not know what customer immigration difficulties they might have, nor were they aware of what facilities there were for handling motor traffic. When they were informed on these matters, they did not hesitate to visit the island before they completed their summer's trip," stated Mr. Hollingsworth.

JUSTICE ORDERS

Who has declared that the Lunacy Act does not apply to municipal officials, and that councilors appointed under the powers cannot enforce the attendance of witnesses.

City & District

Works Committee Meeting.—The Public Works Committee of the City Council will meet this afternoon at two o'clock. The Inter-Municipal Cemetery Board will hold a session in the morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Taking Out Licences.—As the result of warning notices sent out from the municipal hall, milk vendors doing business in Oak Bay have been rushing to take out licences which are issued under a new by-law passed in the Spring.

Results of Drawing.—As a result of drawing in Salmon's Totalisator for the St. Peter, the first was won by Mr. Max Leiser, with Tranquil, $1,948; second, by Mr. W. Davidson, with Papyrus, $984; and third by Mr. A. J. Mayne with Teagles, $492.

Visits Jordan River.—Premier John Oliver and Mr. Speaker Pauline visited the Jordan River country yesterday afternoon, inspected roads and talked with settlers regarding the proposed extension of the Jordan River Road into the Port Hecwew district.

Plan Masquerade.—The Equilateral branch of the Ladies' Guild for Sailors, held its monthly meeting at the club yesterday. The president, Mrs. Gave, presided. After routine business the meeting discussed and made arrangements for the masquerade dance on November 8, at the club. A vote of appreciation was passed to Mrs. Gave for her successful management of the recent fete at Fernhill.

Rotary Luncheon.—Rotarians Clarence B. Deaville, Percy Marchant and J. M. Graham were the speakers before yesterday's luncheon of the Rotary Club at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. They spoke on the Rotary code of ethics. Mayor Hayward made an explanation of his action in calling a half-holiday last Thursday in order to swell the attendance at the fair, saying that he expected this move to meet with general approval.

St. John's Silver Tea.—A silver tea in aid of the missionary work of the St. John's Church, Quadra Street, was held in the Rectory yesterday afternoon. Mrs. F. A. P. Chadwick acted as hostess. A large number of persons. Mrs. Harrison, president of the Women's Auxiliary to the church, presided. The reception committee consisted of Messdames Hawkins, Richards and Huddleston. Refreshments were served by Messdames Moohead, Garham, Kirk, Hallam and Baker. Music was rendered by Mrs. Rowle and Mrs. Stone.

A Harvest of Fines.—It was a great day for the municipal treasury in the police court yesterday, when sixteen persons paid fines in the sum of $5 each for not having "well and sufficiently lighted rear lights" on their respective motor cars. A majority of the defendants contented themselves with a brief admission that they had thus come short of full compliance with the traffic regulations; a few explained that the trouble was with an oil lamp which had stupidly gone out just as the police constable arrived on the scene; one said that he had parked his car under a street arc light, and that his car constituted no danger to the night traffic of a quiet residential district; but one and all they discovered that the shortest way out of court led past the desk where fines in such cases imposed are receivable.

SOLDIERS INJURED IN MOTORCAR COLLISION

Private A. Anthony was seriously injured yesterday morning, when a light truck of the Canadian Army Service Corps and a heavy motor vehicle owned by the Brackman & Ker Company, collided on a steep incline on the East Saanich Road, near Elk Lake. Anthony received medical attention from Dr. J. P. Ve, and was reported last night to be progressing favorably. Two other soldiers, Sergt.-Major T. Radford and Corporal G. H. Evans, were also hurt, but less seriously than their companion.

According to a report made by the Saanich police department, the army car was going down the hill and struck the Brackman & Ker truck on the left side. The shock wrecked both cars badly and injured the three soldiers who were riding in the back of the army car. The driver of neither car was injured, a somewhat remarkable circumstance.

VETERANS OF FRANCE MEET

A well-attended meeting of the Veterans of France was held last evening. The meeting opened with a silent tribute to the departed comrades, included among whom was the late Colonel Thomas Clark Ewing, whose funeral will take place today from Santa Funeral Parlors at 2:30.

Leave of absence was granted to Comrade Thomas Jones, first vice-president, and T. Payton, councillor.

The local branch of the Army and Navy Veterans will give a singing concert in the club to entertain Captain R. Pocock and the ship's company of the steam yacht "Frontiersmen," on their arrival in the city in the near future.

Comrade A. H. Down has been nominated to take the place of Comrade T. Jones on the Armistice Period Committee. Comrade C. P. Askey will occupy Comrade Jones' post on the Soldiers' Relief Committee.

Comrade Seymour Rowlinson, president of the Victoria branch, presided at last night's meeting, which was enthusiastic and well attended.

FORMER VICTORIANS APPEAR IN PAGEANT

Mr. H. Joy as John Bull and Mrs. G. A. Wright as Britannia in "The Wayfarer," Los Angeles

The right of Victoria to be known as "a little bit of England on the shores of the Pacific" is strengthened by the choice of two of her former residents to play John Bull and Britannia in the production of "The Wayfarer" at Los Angeles. That this is no small honor can be realized when it is pointed out that the cast of the pageant totals 7,000 people.

The part of John Bull is being taken by Mr. Herbert Joy, who formerly lived in Victoria, and has had a long military career. His father was a trumpeter for the famous "Light Brigade." The character Britannia is being portrayed by Mrs. G. A. Wright, who lived here two years ago, while her daughter was attending St. Margaret's School and who is the wife of Dr. G. A. Wright, physician and surgeon of Los Angeles. Both Dr. and Mrs. Wright are Canadians. Pictures of John Bull and Britannia appeared in a recent issue of The Los Angeles Times under the heading, "Far-famed pair will appear; illustrious Britons in 'Wayfarer.'"

MEETING OF DOCTORS NEAR END OF MONTH

British Columbia and Washington Sections of American College of Surgeons Assemble Here

Arrangements are fast being completed by a committee composed of members of the local physicians and surgeons' association relative to the programme to be observed during the convention of the British Columbia and Washington sections of the American College of Surgeons, on September 23 and 24. The programme will include clinics to be held in Victoria hospitals each morning of the two days. During the afternoon of the first day a hospital conference will be held, when several speakers will address the assembly, and a public meeting in the evening, when the speakers will include Dr. Case, prominent radiologist, whose home is in Battle Creek, Michigan. It is the desire of the committee to secure the attendance of as many Victoria residents as possible at the public gathering. Addresses will be given in non-technical language, and will contain information valuable to surgeons and laymen alike. On the afternoon of the second day a scientific meeting will be held.

The convention will be attended by many of the most prominent surgeons of Canada and the United States. Dr. D. Burnett, of Vancouver, is chairman of the British Columbia section of the College. Dr. Hermann Robertson is organizing chairman, and Dr. Douglas Graham is secretary.

ADVOCATE LASH FOR WAYWARD YOUTHS

Child Protection Officials Hold Whip-pling for Serious Offences Only Effective Corrective

WINNIPEG, Sept. 12.—The question of corporal punishment was discussed at this afternoon's session of the Conference of the Canadian Association of Child Protection officers, and was ultimately referred to a committee for investigation and a resolution. Most of the speakers favored the use of the lash for serious offences.

"The only thing boys of the bully type understand is physical pain," declared M. Brackind, in charge of the Vancouver detention home.

"Lashes for serious offences are the only solution in my opinion."

"Jail is a joke today," another officer asserted. "Good warm clothes, comfortable quarters and a moderate amount of labor result in making the average offender more comfortable than at home. Imprisonment is no deterrent to the mentally deficient. The lash to stop social crimes and burglary is the best solution."

D. B. Hamilton, warned against heavy action, as he declared corporal punishment was the last way of correction. He felt that lashes had created more liars and sneaks than almost any other form of punishment and advocated caution before any expression of opinion was given by the association.

Judge Ethel McLachlan, of Regina, read the secretary's report, showing a slight drop in membership.

PROVINCE TO AMEND EGG MARKS MEASURE

Regulations Must Conform With Dominion Rules Altered at Last Session

Amendment to the Provincial Egg Marks Act to conform with the Dominion regulations, which were amended at the last session of the House of Commons, will be carried out by the Legislature this year.

The new Dominion regulations extend the standardization of eggs to those intended for domestic consumption. No other country has as yet attempted to take such a step.

The original regulations covered export, import, and interprovincial shipments, but it is now provided that every case or container of eggs shipped or delivered, either on consignment or bought for resale, will have to be marked on both ends with the name and class of egg contained therein. Provision is made that any producer or other person dealing in eggs may delegate his right to candle and grade to the first wholesaler or retailer to whom the eggs are shipped or delivered, in which case cases or containers must be marked with the words "Graded Eggs for Shipment Only."

Consumers will be particularly interested in the regulations, which read as follows: "Every case or container of eggs that is exposed, displayed or offered for sale by any person selling or delivering eggs direct to consumers in a public place, or in any other place where the eggs are sold, or accompanied in conspicuous letters with the name of the class and grade of eggs contained therein. No person shall buy for sale or resale, or expose, offer for sale, or sell eggs which are unfit for human food." In other words, eggs must be candled and graded according to the Canadian standards before being offered for sale.

CLOTHIERS WILL SHOW HOW SUITS ARE MADE

Novel Exhibit Will Be Given in Connection With National Meeting in Chicago This Month

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—From the wool on a sheep's back to a suit of clothes on a man's back, including all the various evolutions necessary to such an operation, is to be demonstrated at the annual exposition of the National Association of Retail Clothiers, which will be held in Chicago the last week in September.

It will be an official demonstration, as the bureau of standards of the economic department of the United States has loaned its complete woolen mill for the occasion, and also will send three government experts to co-operate in the conversion.

The object is to give the man who buys clothing a clear idea of the work necessary to turn out the finished article, and also concrete knowledge of the actual cost entailed in such transformation.

Unshorn sheep will be driven into the Municipal Pier, where the exposition is to be held, through one entrance, and the man will walk out another entrance wearing a suit of clothes made from the material obtained from wool sheared from these animals.

An expert accountant will follow every move of the operation and make an official record of the actual cost of each individual part of the work, and when the suit is finished the public will be given the official figures.

The retailers also will have a booth of efficiency experts who will show how much of an expense is incurred by the retailer in selling clothes.

MISS ALICE BAYLEY

WEDS MR. J. McLENNAN

Pretty Ceremony Celebrated Yesterday at Reformed Episcopal Church

The Reformed Episcopal Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding ceremony yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, when the Rev. A. J. Reid, officiated at the marriage between Alice Mary Gladys, only daughter of the late Mr. J. H. Bayley, of Cheltenham, England, and Mr. J. H. McLennan, second son of Mr. R. P. McLennan, of Vancouver, of the firm of McLennan & McFeely, of that city.

The service was attended by a few intimate friends and relatives of the bride and groom. The church was beautifully decorated with autumn blooms and greenery. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. H. E. Bayley, of Victoria, looked very handsome in a costume of reindeer velvet, with hat en suite. Her shower bouquet was of Ophelia roses and the bridesmaid, who was attended by her niece, Miss Gladys Bayley, as flower girl, who wore a pretty dress of peach satin and carried a basket of roses and carnations. The groom was supported by Mr. Drew Pratt, of Vancouver.

Following the service a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Bayley, St. Ann Street, which was attended by the bride's stepmother, Mrs. Bayley, who came from England to attend the wedding, and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McLennan, Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. McLennan, of Vancouver. The decorations of peach blossoms and white flowers. A wedding breakfast was served, the table being centred with a handsome three-tier cake. Mr. and Mrs. McLennan left on a honeymoon motor trip in the States, and on their return will make their home in Vancouver. They were the recipients of many beautiful gifts.

EDUCATIONAL CLUB

Women's Organisation Associated With Columbia College Meets —Miss Snyder Speaks

After a two months' holiday covering the summer season, the first monthly meeting of the Fall season was held by the Women's Educational Club of the Columbia College at the residence of Mrs. E. H. Gitt, 62 Cambridge Street, yesterday afternoon. Topics concerning the business for the coming winter were discussed and laid before the president, Mrs. Sheritt, who occupied the chair.

A very instructive and helpful talk on assisting in the home was given by Miss Snyder, secretary of the Social Service League, explaining the urgent need, more apparent now than ever before, of working in the home of the needy. Miss Snyder referred to every day living cases, and hoped that everything possible would be done to alleviate the suffering that comes to the needy with colder weather. The speaker estimated that at least $2,400 will be needed to carry on the work, as there are many fathers of families out of work at the present time. Miss Snyder emphasized the fact that many children are compelled to give up their education during the winter months owing to want of sufficient clothing and nourishment.

Great enthusiasm was shown by all present at the simplicity and directness of the talk, Mrs. Sheritt thanking Miss Snyder in the name of the association. Following this delightful solo were rendered by Mrs. H. F. Lashby and Mrs. Archie Willis, which were much appreciated. Later, refreshments were served by the ladies.

MISS STELLA PORTER

WEDS STANLEY ELLIS

Pretty Wedding Solemnized at St. Paul's Church, Esquimalt, on Wednesday Evening

St. Paul's Anglican Church, Esquimalt, was crowded with friends of the bride and groom on Wednesday evening, when the Rev. F. C. Chapman, assisted by Canon Stocken, united in matrimony Stella Porter, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Porter, of 711 London Street, and Mr. Stanley Ernest Ellis, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ellis, 628 Rupert Street. The ceremony was one of the most charming weddings of the Fall season. For the occasion the church had been beautifully decorated with masses of flowers in a color scheme of mauve and pink by friends of the bride.

Entering the church on the arm of her father the bride was lovely in a handsome gown of ivory crepe made in long-waisted effect, with panel at the left side of the waist caught with a bouquet of orange blossom, which she carried. Worn by the bride's mother on her wedding gown. The veil was embroidered, and caught beneath a bandeau of pearls and orange blossoms.

Miss Hilda Parkinson was the only bridesmaid, and wore a pretty mauve shot taffeta dress, with hat to match. The flower girls were Miss Wilma Phyllis Ellis, sister of the groom, and Miss Gladys Ellis, and were both dressed in picturesque frocks of pink organdie. They carried baskets of flowers tied with large pink tulip bows. The groomsmen were Mr. Arthur J. Porter, brother of the bride. During the signing of the register Mr. Ellis, the groom's father, sang "Love's Coronation."

Following the service the bridal party and friends repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a large reception was held. The guests were greeted by Mrs. Porter, groomed in navy blue satin and grey, and her sister, Mrs. H. C. Martin, in a smart costume of navy blue, also Mrs. Ellis, mother of the groom, who wore a brown satin dress.

The bride and groom received the good wishes from a host of friends standing in the drawing-room beneath a wedding bell composed of white flowers and pink roses. Streamers of pink and mauve were also employed in the decorative scheme of the house.

Refreshments were served in the dining-room, and the table, centred with the handsome three-tier wedding cake, which had been leaved and decorated by Mrs. George Eldridge, of Langford, was adorned with pink sweet peas and streamers suspended from the chandelier. Friends of the bride assisted in serving refreshments, including the Misses Jane and Kitty Parkinson, Anne Bennett and Katherine Hayles.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Ellis left for Cadboro Beach Hotel, where the honeymoon will be spent. On Sunday they will leave for California, where they will reside in the future. The bride's traveling costume was a dress of brown Canton crepe with hat to match, and brown coat of Bolivia cloth, trimmed with beaver.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis were the recipients of many handsome gifts which testified to the popularity of the bride and groom. The bride's gift to the groom was a gold watch, chain and locket; and the groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful ring of pearls, and a pearl and diamond brooch; to the bridesmaid he gave a gold pearl brooch and earrings; to the flower girls, cameo rings; to the groomsmen, a tiepin; and to the ushers, who were Messrs. W. C. Martin and Herbert Martin, cousins of the bride, he presented cuff links. The many gifts included a silver cake dish from the H. N. C. Bookyard, Esquimalt, where the groom was an accountant; a silver jar from members of the choir of St. Paul's Church, and clock in mahogany case from St. Paul's Tennis Club.

WEDDINGS

Clay-Tribe-Clay-Nelson

An interesting double wedding was celebrated in Vancouver by Rev. A. C. Cameron, of Burnaby, on Tuesday afternoon, when the two sons of Mr. and Mrs. F. Clay were two of the principals in a ceremony conducted at the residence of their parents, 1249 Davis Street. The elder, Mr. Percy Clay, was united in marriage to Miss Bertha Tribe, daughter of Mrs. M. E. Tribe, of Rosedale. Miss Tribe was formerly attached to the nursing school of the Provincial Hospital. Miss Tribe wore her traveling gown of navy blue tulle and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Mrs. E. Tribe, who was also garbed in dark blue. The bride of Mr. Heginald Clay was Miss Helen Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Nelson, of Burnaby. She was attired in the conventional dress of white satin, veiled in pearls and a long wedding veil of net in Juliette style. Her bouquet was of Ophelia roses. Three bridesmaids attended her, Miss Owen Clay wore King's blue crepe, Miss Jean Nelson was in pale pink swastika crepe and Miss Ethel Roberts had chosen white silk melon. All three carried bouquets of white and pink carnations. At the conclusion of the ceremony a reception was held when Mrs. H. Adams and Miss N. Abbie presided over the tea table.

Dining Car Loss Hurts Railways

Attention is drawn by The Montreal Herald to losses resulting from the operation of dining cars by railroad companies, and suggestion is made that these last might be well advised to take a leaf out of the British book. On this side of the Atlantic we are apt to take it for granted that the last word in railroad management is spoken by American experts; there are, however, a few wrinkles devised by the slow but sure Britisher which make for economy as well as convenience.

On the back of its dining car menus a statement has been printed by the Burlington Route which shows that, during 1922, there was a loss of more than $500,000 on not quite 1,000,000 meals served in its forty dining cars—an average of sixty-eight cents per car per day. The deficit is figured out on the basis of cost per meal, as follows: Food, 56c; wages, 46c; renewals and repairs to kitchen and dining-room equipment, 3c; superintendence and storekeeper expense, 5c; laundry, 4c; general repairs, ice, coal, fuel, insurance, de-

There are numerous uses in every household for Gillett's Pure Flake Lye. It costs very little but gives valuable service in cleaning and disinfecting sinks, closets and drains; softening water and making laundry soap; destroying vermin; cleaning dirty floors, greasy pots and pans, etc.; removing old paint, and for scores of other purposes. Avoid inferior substitutes. Ask your grocer for the genuine—preciation and other miscellaneous expenses, 22c; total, $1.44. Average receipt per meal, 90c, showing a deficit of 54c, or $525,673 per year—the cost of hauling car not included.

A moment's thought will convince the reader that there could not be any other result from the present system of operation. To begin with, there is the operating cost of car mileage, which represents the cost of hauling the car one mile. This overhead expense goes on as long as the dining car is running on the road while the possibilities of revenue are limited to customary meal hours, three times a day. Next, patronage is unavoidably limited to the passengers of the train, not all of whom will avail themselves of the facility provided for their benefit. Again, a crew of from nine to eleven men is required and the percentage of waste can certainly not be lower than in a stationary restaurant that is able to operate under the most favorable conditions. Finally, the car itself represents an investment of around $50,000. The surprising thing, indeed, is that more money is not lost than the railroads report to be the case.

In England, at all stations of any size one may purchase moderate-priced but appetizing lunch boxes to be eaten on the train. If a hot meal or a more elaborate menu is desired, however, dining cars are available on the longer runs which are operated on the table d'hôte plan, instead of a la carte as with us. An attendant who goes through the train, some time in advance of the meal, sells tickets to those who intend to patronize the dining car, so that the chef knows the exact number of guests for whom he must prepare, and waste is consequently reduced to a minimum. Yet the price for a substantial dinner is less than $1.00. Whether the English system is actually profitable or not, we do not know. If any is considerably less than that incurred under the American system, while the traveling public are quite satisfied with the fare but before them.—Quebec Chronicle.

The Girl in the Corner Apartment

By MAY CHRISTIE
Author of "One Glorious Year," "The Daring Kim," Etc.

THE CHARACTERS
Cynthia Brent, country girl living in a New York apartment who has inherited from an old lady she once befriended.

Ruby Allison, her gay and frivolous friend.

Alec Kerr, Ruby's fiancé.

Quentin Gray, an artist friend of Ruby.

Aunt Ellen, who keeps house for Cynthia.

Murray Stewart, for whom Cynthia is working as a stenographer.

Mrs. Wakeland, friend and rich client of Stewart, who takes a fancy to Cynthia.

Violet Jerrold, friend of Murray's.

XXX—Paying Scores

MURRAY—Violet leaned forward and spoke in a clear, carrying tone. "Excuse my interrupting your conversation, but I want your good advice on something. Will you give it to me?"

The young man turned. There was an impatient challenge on Miss Violet's face which made him feel a little awkward. And he was rather vexed that she had broken into his tea-table.

But Miss Violet held her ground. She was the centre of conversation once again, and that gave her confidence.

"I'm in earnest. I'm tired of staying at home. There are all the odd jobs to do, without any of the rewards."

This was a bit, or at any rate, a great exaggeration. The young woman's life at home was one of leisure, and of comfort. She was very badly spoiled.

And her natural indolence in domestic matters was fostered by an adoring mother.

"What did you think of doing, Miss Jerrold?" Murray Stewart put the question.

"I'd rather like to become a private secretary. Were you in need of one?" This pertly.

"I'm already suited, thank you," Violet said, glancing at her wrist. Cynthia, that fleeting moment, Violet what she wished to know. This young girl was indeed the "interloper" she had suspected.

"I'm, I've known of anyone who wants a secretary?"

"I'm afraid I don't." The young man felt uncomfortable. He wondered vaguely what Miss Jerrold meant.

"Of course my people would be furious. Mother would consider that I was going down in the social scale. Poor dear, she's behind the times, isn't she?" Despite the last remark, it seemed as though Miss Violet herself concurred in the sentiment that she attributed to her mother.

She gave Cynthia a shrewd survey. "And it's quite the general idea nowadays to look on typists and secretaries as 'love-pirates'."

"What's that?" Cynthia asked. "Love-pirates? Husband-snatchers?" She laughed lightly, though—to Cynthia's hot ears—there was malice in the laugh.

"What on earth do you mean, my dear?" Margaret Wakeland's sweet voice contained a gently rebuking note.

"Just what I say." The girl held her ground in a bantering fashion. She would get even with the pretty young woman who was sitting on the other side of Murray Stewart.

With a vexed look in her dark eyes, Violet envied her those eyes, and wished she could exchange her own green ones for those "pools of darkness."

"I'm afraid you don't know very much about it," said the woman she had previously snubbed on the church-going question.

"Oh yes, I do. One has only to read the daily papers for the confirmation of what I'm saying. Divorce cases, and that sort of thing. Besides, it's a well-known fact that girls go into city offices in nine cases out of ten to get a husband."

"So that's why you want to go, too?" Violet inquired, the snubbed one. This was a chance she couldn't possibly resist. And the usually nimble-witted Violet had really "asked for it."

Before she could reply a diversion was caused by Cynthia rising up to take her departure.

Not that she was afraid of Violet's tongue. But she felt vexed for Mrs. Wakeland's sake. The result of conversation was evidently worrying that lady.

"I've stayed such a long time—hours and hours—and I really must get home now," she said brightly, crossing the floor to her hostess and holding out a very friendly hand. "It was so nice of you to ask me today, and I have enjoyed myself so much."

To the surprise of everybody Murray Stewart rose also.

"I think we go the same direction," Miss Brent said, smiling and moving. To the surprise of everybody, what I didn't realize the flight of time."

In a few moments the pair of them had gone.

"Oh, Violet, you had girl, how could you say such a thing about girls in offices? 'Love-pirates' and 'husband-snatchers'! Indeed! Didn't you know that Cynthia Brent is Murray Stewart's secretary?" Mrs. Wakeland spoke reproachfully.

"Of course I didn't know," fibbed Violet, not a scrap abashed, and very pleased her shaft had told.

"Gentle," the woman she had previously snubbed, spoke up.

"If by 'love-pirate' you mean that Miss Brent has stolen her employer's affections, you were perfectly correct," said she, perkily. "For I've never seen a man more thoroughly smitten. Why, he had his eyes on anyone else in the room? And I don't blame him, for she's sweetly pretty—and so modest!" She emphasized the last word, meaningly.

"It's clear as daylight that he's head over heels in love with her."

She heaved a complacent sigh, knowing that the "score" was paid in full.

Tomorrow—Infatuation.

LEAGUE GIVEN LABOR APPROVAL

In industry and under-specialized in agriculture, must continue trading.

"Four problems," said Mr. Hodges, "are no doubt difficult, but they are infinitesimal as compared with those of England. Our standard of living is falling, and falling, not so much from internal dissension, but because of our sheer dependency on normal trading."

If the population were to be looked after properly, none of the economic problems would have to be applied.

Evolution

"Education," continued the speaker, "is the foundation of our political labor systems." It was necessary to go through a painfully prolonged evolutionary process. The reason why the Labor Party was now His Majesty's Opposition, politically, was because the unionists had not been able to recognize in the wider field of international affairs. Labor was getting respectable—perhaps too respectable," said laudingly.

Referring to the spreading of Bolshevism from Moscow westward, Mr. Hodges stated that the Russian system had nothing to offer Western civilization, the modern conception of government.

Labor's Position

When called upon to defend parliamentary constitutionalism the labor party has been able to maintain its position. A true balance between agriculture and industry should be maintained, otherwise labor in conclusion, would be over-run as England, where over-specialization in industry had resulted in the degradation of the agriculturalist. A scientific plan with the co-operation of organized labor in home and colonies should be put into operation in the emigration of unemployed from Britain. The present method was a failure. It was not to bring the men here haphazard, nor was it a solution to pay out doles. It could use some of that four hundred million pounds of money and doles to prepare the way for one hundred thousand or more of the unemployed, and it would be a lasting benefit and great economic advantage to the Dominion.

But the British Government did not believe in spending money that way. They would have their hands of all matters connected with industry and encouraged capitalists to get as much out of the workers as possible.

"Europe," he said, "is not content with your long time, but you buy goods from them. Sometimes I wonder if Europe ever will recover. But Great Britain will look more and more toward English-speaking nations to rehabilitate the world—or those portions susceptible of rehabilitation."

The role of the speaker said, "The role of the labor movement is to bring love where there is hatred; brotherhood where there is discord."

Heated Debate

Before the endorsement of the League of Nations by the delegates, there was a lengthy and heated debate in which the aims, objects and disquisitions of the League were discussed.

President Moore left the chair to speak, paying tribute to the efforts of peace through the League, affirming his belief that the workers should do everything possible to assist in the abolition of war.

Secretary P. M. Draper also defended the League against attacks by delegates Malcolm Bruce, J. McDonald and Jack Kavanagh, whose ideas were about lasting peace were to support the Third International programme.

Delegate McDonald, Toronto, declared the League was useless and obsolete, its purposes were to deceive the workers and precipitate war for the benefit of the master class.

President Moore denied that it was a class organization. It was evolved from the protests and agitation of world labor against the repetition of war. Its genesis would be found in the best thought of the labor world.

"The Spanish deputy, Riachola, sent a telegram to the Premier protesting against the Barcelona arrests, which he described as arbitrary. He also protested against the violence of the police in the disturbances at Barcelona yesterday, adding: 'I beg to recall to you and General Primo the phrase that the Catalans are not of the disposition of a dog that licks the hand that strikes it.'"

power in this city. The main telephone exchange here was occupied at four o'clock this morning by a band of revolutionaries, who are reported to be led by Captain-General Primo Rivera. It is believed that the movement will signalize an outbreak in other towns in Spain.

A document, addressed to all Spaniards and signed by Captain-General Rivera, was published at two o'clock this morning. It criticizes the present government and stigmatizes the professional politicians for seizing the power and destroying the will of the King.

Owing to this situation, the document continues, the military authorities will take the direction and responsibility of the power to govern, either directly or through civilians.

Army in Control
At the moment of declaring a state of siege, asserts the document, the military authority will deprive the present civil officials of their powers and assume their functions. It will seize all means of communication and forbid circulation except for business and family reasons.

The authorities of the new regime, continues the proclamation, will occupy the headquarters of the Communist and Revolutionary associations, the prisons, the banks, the electric power stations and the points at which the water supply is controlled. All suspects will be arrested.

In addition, declares the document, the leaders of the movement will seek to maintain the normal life of the country. The proclamation ends with an appeal to the patriotism of the population, entreating the military forces to give their lives to their country if necessary.

Revolt Foreseen
LONDON, Sept. 13.—Grave statements which have been made privately in London recently by competent foreign observers who have arrived from Madrid regarding the internal situation in Spain acquire unusual interest in view of the present revolt.

It had been stated that there was a strong revolutionary party in Spain which was plotting to overthrow the government and months ago their plans were said to have progressed so far that trouble was expected to break out within the present year.

It was also stated by one in position to know that King Alfonso was fully cognizant of the position and had no doubt that sooner or later he would be forced to face a revolt.

Commencement Exercises—Commencement exercises will be held at the Margaret Jenkins School this afternoon at 2 o'clock, to which a special invitation to be present is extended to old pupils of the institution, their parents and friends. There will be a short programme carried out by the pupils and Mr. A. R. Sherwood, vice-president of the National History Society, will address the pupils. There are several prizes which will be presented to the winners during the course of the afternoon.

Modern Gladiators Ready for the Fray

Jack Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo Step Into the Ring Tonight to Fight for World's Heavyweight Championship—Titleholder Is Going Into Contest an Overwhelming Favorite

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Two modern gladiators, Jack Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo, will match their courage and punch in tonight's greatest test of their careers: A "Battle of Contingents," in which that greatest prize of the ring, the heavyweight championship of the world, will be at stake. The American holder of the title, king in the squared circle for the last four years, will go into the conflict an overwhelming favorite among close followers of the game, to win decisively. But those who have followed the meteoric rise of Firpo, his climb from obscurity to fame in a year and a half, believe that the "mighty right" that has thrust aside all opposition heretofore, may upset calculations and bring triumph to the "Wild Bull of the Pampas."

"BILLY" MASCOTT IS GIVEN DECISION

Portland Lad Beats Vic Foley, of Vancouver, After Game Struggle of Hard Baiting

VANCOUVER, Sept. 13.—"Billy" Mascott, of Portland, was given the decision here last night over "Vic" Foley, of Vancouver, after ten rounds of terrific boxing.

The first two rounds were comparatively even. Apparently Foley had all the confidence in the world. Coming up for the third round, Foley left himself open with the result that Mascott landed a right to the jaw and left to the stomach. Foley went down with all the appearance of a man completely knocked out. He came up at the count of "nine," however, and held on for the balance of the round. Foley came back in the fourth, more cautious, of course, and felt his way. In the fifth he opened up and gave Mascott a very pretty boxing lesson.

However, Mascott recognized he was up against a game boy and was waiting only for a knockout. Foley by this time had come back and sailed in with everything he had, clearly outpointing Mascott up to the eighth round. Throwing all caution to the wind in the eighth, Mascott sent in everything he had for a knockout, but without result. In the ninth and tenth Foley was on his opponent from the top of the go. He clearly outboxed and out-punched Mascott, and the latter was tiring rapidly he retained enough to withstand Foley to the end.

Lawn Bowling Notes

There are men, though they speak Scotch, understand English, and there are women, who speak English, who can understand the following lines:

There's no a nicher but whill he's seen On that confounded boolin' green, Wh' anxious face an' starlin' een, Wh' anxious face an' starlin' een, Whill whoopin' like some Indian fien' a Frae bank tak' bank.

I think he's fairly off his head, He's scarcely time tak' a feed, He hurries home each night wi' speed, Wh' anxious face an' starlin' een, Whill whoopin' like some Indian fien' a Frae bank tak' bank.

Each morn' I rouse him wi' a roar, Dead wearied frae the night before, He only answers wi' a snore, Whill whoopin' like some Indian fien' a Frae bank tak' bank.

There's naught but boolin' on his mind, Even at the kirk he's quite resigned, He hear the preacher's text defined, Whill whoopin' like some Indian fien' a Frae bank tak' bank.

The minister yae morn was tellin' O' David great Goliath fella, Wh' chuckle frae his slag propellin' O' David great Goliath fella, Whill whoopin' like some Indian fien' a Frae bank tak' bank.

Oh, if that winter days were in, He'd maybe stay in' chitlin' win, He'd maybe stay in' chitlin' win, Whill whoopin' like some Indian fien' a Frae bank tak' bank.

READ THIS BEFORE YOU GO HUNTING

The hunting season will be with us shortly. Many thousands of new hunters will be in the field this fall. It would be well for all the results and the veterans, too, to read the appended message from the Conservation Board of British Columbia:

DO NOT destroy fences or property of the farmer and always ask for permission to shoot over his property.
DO NOT shoot at anything in the bush unless you are sure of what you are shooting at.
DO NOT go hunting until you are acquainted with the Game Laws.
DO NOT forget to make sure it's a buck. It may be a doe, a cow or a man. How would YOU feel?
DO NOT destroy advertising or other signs posted in the district in which you are hunting.
DO NOT enter a boat or car with a loaded gun or rifle.
DO NOT discharge firearms from an automobile or other vehicle, as it is a very dangerous practice and is also against the law.
DO NOT forget to leave a clean camp and a clean record. You may want to come back.
BE a sportsman—not just a cheap sport.
DO NOT shoot harmless wild life. Shoot crows, magpies, coopers and sharp-shinned hawks and great-horned owls; they do more harm than good.
DO NOT throw lighted cigar or cigarette butts in the bush or after them. They are sure to leave lighted fires in the camp. Protect your FORESTS and your GAME.
DO NOT forget to report violations of the "Game Act" to the nearest Game Warden, as by this means better protection can be afforded the game and you will have better shooting.
DO NOT forget to carry your firearms licence when out hunting, as this is necessary under the "Game Act," and it also helps the Game Wardens in performing their duty.
DO NOT forget to try and make the FARMER your friend, as you will in this way be able to obtain better shooting.
REPORT all forest fires to the nearest Fire Warden or Game Warden.

SWEETSER'S TITLE AT STAKE TOMORROW

National Amateur Golf Championship of United States to Be Decided on Ploosmoor Links

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—Over nearly four miles of velvety turf at the Ploosmoor Links, the national amateur golf championship will be decided during the eight days beginning September 15, and Jess Sweetser, of New York, who won the title last year, will be there to defend his honors against a number of former champions and several score sterling golfers who have yet to feel the crown on their brow.

The Ploosmoor links is one of the greatest tests of golf in the world, according to experts, having a par of 74 for its regular length of 6,508 yards. Several of the holes will use new tees far enough back of the regular driving places to make the distance nearly 7,000 yards, although the hole will remain the same. Seidman does good golf but is a rough perfect figure on the difficult course, and only once in competition has anyone broken 70.

Picturesque Course
The course lies twenty-five miles south of Chicago's business centre, and is laid out over rolling ground, bedecked on several holes by trees and broken on four holes by rather precipitous hills of moderate height. Butterfield creek threads the golf course, and the water is a fine play on the hole claims as its only fairway a pond that reaches from the hole to the green, the assembly all but canopied by trees.

The grass is verdant and even, making the lies on the fairways, perfect while the putting greens are as true as carpet, despite the fact that the driving contests, and on Monday the qualification will decide which thirty-two players are best fitted to play off the 36-hole matches for the title.

While Sweetser will be a favorite of many, the almost impossible task of repeating two years in succession will lead others to favor Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, national open champion, who has averaged close to seventy for all rounds played thus far this year; Chick Evans, of Chicago, who lost the finals to Sweetser last year, or some of the other stars who have been playing good golf this season.

Saturday will be devoted to elimination of supernumerary players. Sunday will be given over to practice and driving contests, and on Monday the qualification will decide which thirty-two players are best fitted to play off the 36-hole matches for the title.

While Sweetser will be a favorite of many, the almost impossible task of repeating two years in succession will lead others to favor Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, national open champion, who has averaged close to seventy for all rounds played thus far this year; Chick Evans, of Chicago, who lost the finals to Sweetser last year, or some of the other stars who have been playing good golf this season.

Francis Hunter Wins From Vincent Richards In Five-Set Match

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—Francis Hunter, of New Rochelle, N.Y., provided a crowd of 10,000 persons with a stirring upset today in the third round of the lawn tennis singles championship of the United States. Handicapped by the necessity of overcoming a lead of two sets to one, the stocky New Yorker, who was finalist in the world's championship tournament at Wimbledon this year, won a victory in five sets over Vincent Richards, of Yonkers, N.Y., member of America's Davis Cup team, and third ranking player of the country. The scores were 4-6, 4-6, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

The other three members of America's Davis Cup team advanced to the fourth round. Two of the foreign entrants reached the fourth round, Manuel Alonso, the Spaniard, eliminated Jacques Brugnon, French Davis Cup player, after a sensational upset, and a contest which rivaled the Hunter-Richards in interest and tension. B. I. C. Norton, South Africa, also fought his way to the play by virtue of his easy triumph over Leonard Jackson, of New York, in straight sets.

Robert Kinsey, San Francisco, defeated Stanley W. Pearson, Philadelphia.

Miss Gooding and Mr. Lundie lost to Miss Waidy and Mr. Curtis Hayward, 6-3, 6-2.

Miss Dawson-Thomas and Mr. O. R. King and Miss Gooding defeated Mrs. Waidy and Mr. Curtis Hayward, 6-3, 6-2.

Miss Gooding and Mr. Lundie lost to Miss Waidy and Mr. Curtis Hayward, 6-3, 6-2.

SULLIVAN FIRST WORLD CHAMPION

SEVEN HAVE BEEN HEAVYWEIGHT BOXING KINGS

Game Flourished in England Many Years Before—Principal Fights for the Big Title

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Heavyweight boxing history has been traced back more than a century, to 1819, when the game first flourished in England, but the world's championship, held today by Jack Dempsey, dates back only about three decades, to 1890, when John L. Sullivan became generally acknowledged as king of them all.

Seven have held the heavyweight sceptre since the reign of the "Boston Strong Boy," and all but one have been American fighters. Bob Fitzsimmons, the lanky Cornishman, was the only foreign pugilist to hold the title.

Thus if Luis Angel Firpo, of Argentina, defeats Dempsey, he will be the second of the line to upset a champion, and the first to take the crown to foreign shores. Fitzsimmons won and lost the title while in this country.

Longest Holders
Jack Johnson, famous negro fighter, and Jim Jeffries, each held the championship for seven years, longer than any others before or after them. Jeffries retired undefeated, but was knocked out by Johnson in 1910 when he attempted a comeback as the "white hope." "Gentle" man Jim Corbett was champion for five years; Jess Willard, four years; Tommy Burns, who succeeded to the title by default when Jeffries hung up his gloves, three years; and Fitzsimmons, two years. Dempsey has ruled the division for the past four years.

In the last championship fight with bare knuckles, Sullivan knocked out Jack Kilrain in 71 rounds up at Jacksonburg, Miss., July 8, 1889. Sullivan held sway with the gloves until 1892, when the title passed to Corbett.

Soccer Notes

By A. M. Brown

The English Football Association, the football league and its clubs are most generously supporting the British Olympic Association in its efforts to maintain the athletic prestige of Britain at the Olympic games next year.

Both the association (150) and the league (110) immediately responded to the request made to them, and the league clubs which followed their example were Chelsea, Aston Villa, The Arsenal, each of which gave £105, Tottenham Hotspur, £85, and West Ham United, £25.

In response to a further and recent appeal, Newcastle United (£62), Everton (£26), Sunderland (£26), and Bolton Wanderers (£20), have added their names to the list, as have the Corinthians, who sent £24, making a grand total of nearly £1,600 to date.

Scottish League Originals

The English League was two years in existence before their Scottish friends inaugurated their organization in the season of 1890-91. The original clubs in the Scots' combine were ten in number—Celtic, Rangers, Third Lanark, St. Mirren, Heart of Midlothian, Dumbarton, Aberdeen, Cambuslang, Vale of Leven and Cowal. Of the above teams, five have retained an unbroken connection with the league, namely: Celtic, Rangers, Third Lanark, St. Mirren, Heart of Midlothian.

Of the others, Dumbarton remained six years in the league. The club later fell away greatly and almost disappeared from the arena. A period in the Second Division was followed by a return to the senior circle, but the club again lost its place in the upper section, and is back in the Second Division.

Vale of Leven remained only two seasons in the premier section. For a time matters went badly for the old team, but it is now in the Second Division.

Three of the original clubs have gone to the wall, namely, Cowal, Aberdeen and Cambuslang. The last named appeared in a Scottish Cup final many years ago, but was up against Renton, when that once-famous team was in the forefront of British soccer, and won by 6-0.

Joint Champions

Rangers and Dumbarton finished with 22 points each in the first season of the league and were declared joint champions. The only other occasion when two clubs finished level was in 1904-5. That season Celtic and Rangers met in a deciding game and the Celtic won.

The Celtic are record winners of the championship with sixteen successes. Rangers come next with eleven championships (including their joint title with Dumbarton). For many years the Queen's Park club held aloof from the league. Certain officials held that, as amateurs, the team should not, or could not, compete with professionals. However, the Queen's joined in 1900-1901. Two years ago, however, the Hampden club lost its place when relegation and promotion became operative. One season in the Second Division was enough for the amateurs, and they regained their place at the opening of this campaign.

Prince Charming Travels Six Thousand Miles for a Holiday

"Lord Renfrew" has arrived in Canada to begin a long holiday at the "E. P." Ranch, near Calgary, and he comes with the hope that Canadians will recognize the fact that the "Prince of Wales" is left behind in London, and accord him the privacy and peace he desires. It will be difficult for Canada to refrain from repeating the welcome it gave in 1918 to the popular heir to the throne. Above as the right is the C. P. At the top left is a picture of the Prince taken in the West on his last visit, and right, his famous smile. Below is Captain Edward Griffith, R. N. During the war Captain Griffith commanded the Empress of Britain as a war transport.

Mrs. Harold Hutchings Playing Splendid Golf On Links at Dixie

DIXIE, Que., Sept. 13.—The defeat in the Canadian Ladies' Closed Golf Championship of Mrs. Hope Gibson, Hamilton, by Miss Ada Mackenzie, of the Mississauga Club, Toronto, was the feature of the third round matches of the second annual closed championship, played here this morning.

Miss Mackenzie won 2 and 1, after a brilliant contest marked by a splendid uphill fight by Mrs. Gibson. Mrs. Harold Hutchings, Winnipeg, qualified to meet Miss Mackenzie in the semi-finals, when she gave an excellent all-around performance of golf to defeat Miss Mackenzie. Mrs. Hutchings, a former champion of the Royal Montreal, 4 and 3. Mrs. Hutchings, despite a rather troublesome wind that blew over the course, played a splendid round, while Miss Mackenzie found difficulty with her drives and was in frequent trouble.

Miss Sidney Pepler, Toronto, advanced to the semi-finals when she defeated Miss Evelyn Kennedy, Montreal, holder of the ladies' championship of the Province of Quebec, 2 and 1. Miss Evelyn Nesbitt, Hamilton, is playing Miss Sidney Pepler in the semi-finals, as a result of her victory over Mrs. H. C. Foy, Quebec, 5 and 3.

SAYS EMPIRE CAN ONLY WATCH NOW

tremendously in trade, and unemployment has been very large in Great Britain as a direct result of our participation in the war. The burden of taxation has become enormous. We do not ignore France's claims, however. France's share was placed at fifty-one per cent of the reparations and ours at twenty-two per cent. We are still satisfied with that division, but we are not satisfied with France's methods of trying to force collection. We had no real knowledge of Germany's internal conditions. We only knew that Germany must be forced to pay the debt. That was the popular cry, and the government of the Allied powers were forced to listen to it. However, the just claims of creditors are not always what the debtors are able to pay.

"The whole reparations plan was thrown out of gear and the machinery wrecked by the refusal of the United States to act as a party in dealing with the claims. The official observers of the United States have been nothing but a source of amusement. They might as well not exist for all the good they are. The failure of the United States to participate left four highly interested parties to threaten the question out. In case of disagreement the decision lay with the chairman, who was French. The reparations commission ceased to be judicial and became merely an instrument of government policy.

"Britain has taken the unassailable position that if great countries are to pay large sums of money to other countries, payments can be made only by agreement and consent, and with the co-operation of other powers. Britain recognized from the first that the fulfillment of Germany's reparations obligations depended largely on the securing of financial aid from the great economic powers, notably the United States. Whatever the wealth on German soil, and whatever the wealth of German private citizens abroad, neither were available for the payment of reparations unless Germany was in a position to pay in the sufficient foreign currency to meet the requirements. German mines, forests and other resources, and German marks, were of no value unless exchanged in the value of the countries to which payments were to be made.

How Germany Can Pay
"Britain has taken the stand that Germany must stabilize her finances and revive her world trade if she is ever to meet her obligations to the outside world. This means a strong German Government, because a weak administration could not accomplish those things. In other words, the world must assist the German Government to pay. Look at the history of the world and study the motives

It would be worse to seek a remedy for the present situation by siding with Germany.

Future Is Dark

"We must look with considerable depression at the situation. The recovery of Europe will be terribly slow, and the bottom has not yet been reached. Germany is likely to collapse to a still more acute degree. Food riots are already reported, and the long nervous tension, always wearing upon her people, may break out in a civil war, leading to an enormous delay of settlement. Yet the only thing to do is let things take their course.

"The encouraging facts are that British foreign markets are expanding, and there is an increasing desire among various units of the Empire to co-operate in intelligent economic effort. The fundamental thing is that British morale is still sound. If you hear that in Britain there is a weakening of morale and of the independent spirit, don't believe it. It is present in just as great a degree as ever, especially among the working classes.

"British influence in world affairs is enormous, and if it is continuously exercised in the cause of peace we will see the end of bad times in Europe much sooner than it is possible to hope at the present moment."

PRINCE MAY ENJOY HUNTING IN QUEBEC

Has Been Invited by Mayors of Municipalities to Indulge in Sport When Returning

QUEBEC, Sept. 13.—Upon his return from the Alberta ranch, the Prince of Wales may go on a hunting trip in Quebec. He has been invited to go hunting in the Laurentians, north of Quebec, by the mayors of fourteen municipalities of Quebec County, and the grand chief of the Huron tribe, who has promised, in the invitation message, that Indian guides would be at his disposal for the journey.

If the offer is accepted, Lord Renfrew, on his return from his ranch, would proceed north from Quebec a few days before embarking and spend two days in the forest.

This morning the Prince rested after his activities last night at the dance at the Chateau Frontenac, and did not leave his hotel for the golf course until eleven.

The feature of the dance last night was the attention paid by the Prince to a New York newspaper woman, Miss Irene Stanley. This young woman was introduced to the Prince during the dance, and he danced several times with her, on one occasion ordering six encores.

The thoughtfulness of the Prince was illustrated this morning by his decision to pose especially again for the press photographers. Yesterday at the dock the light conditions were not good and one cameraman endeavored to get a snap of the Prince as he was coming out of his hotel. A secret service man, with perhaps more zeal than discretion, knocked down the photographer. When this incident was brought to the attention of the Prince he expressed regret and then announced that he would pose specially for the picture men this afternoon on the steps of his hotel on his way to the train.

Yesterday's Dinner
Lord Shaw of Dunfermline tells an amusing story of an experience in the old days when the Scottish Bench in Edinburgh were accustomed to dine at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, then went on till late or early, according to the cases before them. At 3 o'clock one afternoon a client called on a distinguished lawyer, and was told by the serving maid that he was in dinner. "At dinner at 3 o'clock in the afternoon?" exclaimed the visitor, incredulously. "Yes," replied the maid, "but it's yesterday's dinner he's eating the now."—The Morning Post.

DISCOVERY NIGHT BRINGS OUT TALENT

Innovation at Royal Victoria Proves Much Local Talent Among Pupils of Dancing and Singing

The management of the Royal Victoria Theatre is to be complimented in having introduced Discovery Night, which is a most commendable step, as through its means local pupils obtain an opportunity of gaining stage experience and stage deportment, and the audience has the pleasure of hearing and witnessing the efforts of students taught by local teachers.

Last night the Royal Victoria was crowded to capacity and the enthusiastic applause accorded each of the singers and the dancer evinced the delight of the large audience. All the contributing artists were young in years, and many with assurance look forward to a brilliant future.

At 8:40 the first singer, Miss Kathleen Davies, a pupil of Mrs. Moreaby, appeared and sang two solos most charmingly. Miss Davies has a powerful mezzo-soprano voice, and her articulation was perfect. She has a wide range, and modulates her voice most pleasingly. As the applause continued after the encore, Mr. Denham announced that, as there were three other artists, a further encore was impossible owing to the limited time allowed for the intermission.

Miss Iris Stratford, a sixteen-year-old singer and a promising pupil of Miss Kate Hemming, was the next to appear. There was a lyrical clarity in Miss Stratford's soprano voice which was most delightful. Miss Stratford was also encored.

Mrs. Wendell Shaw's pupil, Miss Phyllis Koster, was the personification of grace in her presentation of "The Dance of the Hours," when easy gestures, intricate steps and toe-dancing brought her the hearty approval of all present.

Miss Eileen Bennett, the fifteen-year-old pupil of Mrs. Walsh Namith, brought the musical programme to a close. Miss Bennett is a mezzo-soprano who possesses a wonderfully powerful voice, which has an appealingly sympathetic quality in the beautiful tones. She sings with ease and has many lovely notes, particularly in the lower register.

It is interesting to know that all three singers have only within the last year taken up the study of voice cultivation, and their careers will be watched with pride by music lovers of Victoria.

DOMINION Pola Negri's new Paramount picture, "The Cheat," featuring Jack Holt as leading man, with Charles de Roche heading the supporting cast, is said to be one of the strongest photoplays of the current season. It is showing at the Dominion Theatre this week. The story deals with a beautiful and wealthy Latin-American girl, who elopes with a New York broker, and after being disinherited by her father, falls into the clutches of a crook disguised as an East Indian prince. When she seeks to repay her debt to him with money he brands her as a cheat and is shot for his pains. This precipitates highly interesting developments that rush to one of the most dramatic climaxes ever screened. The supporting cast is exceptionally strong. George Fitzmaurice produced the picture, the story of which was written by Hector Turnbull.

ROYAL A large, old-fashioned trunk in Jackie Coogan's "Daddy," a First National picture, produced by Sol Lesser, which is the attraction at the Royal again today. E. Mason Hopwood directed it from the original story by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Coogan. Much of the action takes place in the attic home of an aged violinist, who finds Jackie Holden, wandering about the streets, and gives him a home. There is only one small bed, but Jackie discovers that the trunk contains a sort of sleeping compartment, and he appropriates it for his own use. After assisting his feeble guardian to retire, all Jackie has to do is to undress and open the cover of the trunk. Within he finds his bed prepared. "Daddy" reveals Jackie Coogan at his best and extends his juvenile genius to a degree perhaps never equalled on the screen or stage. In one episode Jackie rises to dramatic heights that establish him as one of the greatest emotional actors of all time.

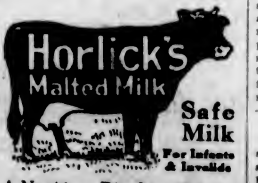

CAPITOL Hollywood proved a victor recently in the battle against the heat wave which swept over the motion picture industry. Carbed in the costumes of soldiers of Napoleon, fifty actors fought a real fight against the heat at the Paramount studio, where Producer Charles Maigne was making "The Silent Partner," featuring Leatrice Joy, Owen Moore and Robert Nelson, which is now playing at the Capitol Theatre. Ice cream and face powder were used as ammunition, and the casualties included the loss of several facial make-ups which melted under the fire of the enemy heat. Carpenters labored with hammers in one hand and ice cream cones in the other. Beds constructed for normal summer weather curled in the heat. Candles in beautiful drawing-rooms tied themselves into knots from sheer weakness, and flowers carried by actresses wilted in sympathy. In the whole of the Paramount studio, in fact, only one company survived the attack without casualties.

COLUMBIA "If a comparison is to be made of the funny business of the screen for the last year, honors must go to Mr. Lloyd." So wrote Quinn Martin, screen editor of The New York Times. The test of conflict with hardships and dangers which have peopled great spaces of the earth with the inhabitants of these islands, the pride in a common ancestry and traditions, and the sense of law-abiding citizenship characteristic of the race, are myriads thousands. Within the Empire there is food and room and wealth in plenty. It is for the Empire's merchants and manufacturers, no less than for its statesmen, to make them available for all.—The Times.

World, and, judging by the screams of laughter which greeted Harold Lloyd's newest Pathe comedy in five parts, "Dr. Jack," yesterday the Columbia Theatre, everyone agrees with Mr. Martin. "Dr. Jack" is a conglomerate of everything one could hope for in a super-comedy. As a funmaker, Mr. Lloyd has reached the pinnacle, but in "Dr. Jack" he has also established himself as a runner-up for honors with the screen's greatest lovers as his chief support. With Mildred Davis is one of the most delightful ever witnessed. Besides all this, "Dr. Jack" contains a real story—a story with a serious undertone of a girl's struggle for health. The girl is played, of course, by Mildred Davis, and she adds Lloyd charmingly in the sentimental vein of the comedy. The uproarious part of the picture comes when Lloyd, as the young doctor, begins his campaign to cure the eminent but unscrupulous physician from the girl's household. Then the fun is fast and furious with laughter piling up faster every moment.

SIX-REEL BUSTER KEATON COMEDY AT CAPITOL MONDAY

Buster Keaton, starring in Joseph M. Schenck's presentation of "Three Ages," through Metro, which is coming next week to the Capitol Theatre, has a good reason for the serious mien that is a part of his fame—his new theory is worthy of him.

"Actors and actresses," says Keaton, "should not have any hair; it is only a nuisance to them. I am going to shave my head bald and then pull the hair out by the roots. As the Mojave Indians did in the old days."

Like every other actor and actress, my life is just my hair. I have another and has been ever since I was three years old. That was the time my father glued an Irishman's red whiskers around my map and a mop of green hair on my dome. Real hair only gets in the way of wigs. Wigs fit better if they can be adjusted to a polished dome. That's one reason why bald heads make the best actors—they don't have any troubles with their wigs."

Buster ought to be an authority on this subject since he has been in part of "Three Ages" is mostly wigs.

GALAXY OF STARS PRESENT HOLLYWOOD AT DOMINION MONDAY

Enough stars and notables to make a dozen pictures—all in one! This fact obtains in James Cruze's Paramount production, "Hollywood," the picture which is coming to the Dominion Theatre next week. Besides the ones who play the leading parts, a strange land—including Luke Cosgrave, G. K. Arthur, Ruby Lafayette, Harris Gordon, Bea Flowers, King Zany and others, the picture shows more than make the famous screen folks. These are the ones the heroine, a girl from the Middle West, finds when she visits the studios seeking work, and she finds at the hotels or on the boulevards: Cecil B. DeMille, Pola Negri, Thomas Meighan, William S. Hart, Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Hoot, Leatrice Joy, Jacqueline Logan, Nina Naldi, Betty Compson, Lila Lee, May McAvoy, Theodore Kosloff and forty other celebrities. The story is by Frank Condon, adapted by Thomas Geraghty.

RUMMIEST BLOKES IN ENGLAND WILL SHOW AT ROYAL

The famous English comedy, "Take Me Back to Blighty," opens at the Royal for a week's engagement Monday. This film from its record in the Old Country is said to be funnier than all its predecessors. The story is a sequel to that other notable comedy, "Me and My Gal," and takes up the thread of the adventures of Sam 'Opkins, the rummiest bloke in London; Squibb, the lovable flower girl and P. C. Charlie Lee, copper from Piccadilly Circus.

In the cinema, it is far more serious matter to be denied the opportunity of seeing clever, well-witted plays, because they do not "provide a good vehicle for Miss Best's skill and talents."

F. COMPTON PLAYERS PLEASE BIG AUDIENCE

"A Message From Mars" Is Splendid Comedy Splendidly Presented Orchestra Added Feature

Another good sized house greeted the players of the Compton Comedy Company at the Playhouse, Yates Street, last night, when the second performance of "A Message From Mars" was presented. The story of the play is a good one, both from a comedy and a dramatic point of view, and the players played their various parts in a manner well worthy of the excellent reputation gained by the Compton Company. An added feature of the Compton entertainments, and one which gave thorough enjoyment to last night's audience, was the orchestra, composed of Mr. C. W. Spencer, piano; Mr. W. F. Tickle, violin, and Mr. G. Shaw, 'cello. The selections offered were carefully chosen, the fox trot, "Marchena," being particularly pleasing.

"A Message From Mars" opens in the interior of an English home in London. Minnie Tremplar, adopted daughter of Horace Parker, a young man surrounded by luxury and an overpowering atmosphere of blind selfishness, wants to marry a handsome party being given by a family friend. Horace, blind to all but his own comfort and desires, refuses to take her. She attended however, in a company with Horace's aunt, after breaking her engagement with Horace. He is left alone, and in an endeavor to forget himself in a scientific essay on the planet Mars, falls to sleep. In his dream comes a weirdly clad messenger. At the stranger's command, Horace is forced to do many things he had never thought of doing before. Gradually he is forced to see himself as he is seen by his relatives and acquaintances, and, being a decent layer of selfishness, he becomes disgusted.

Before his aunt and Miss Tremplar return from the party he awakes, but he remembers his strange dream so vividly that he realizes the impossible position he has been occupying. The fire bells ring, and he discovers that a tenement house nearby is ablaze. In his new spirit of tolerance he hastens together the unfortunate sufferers who have lost their homes and lodges them in his own commodious dwelling. His aunt and sweetheart return in time to assist him and to express their astonishment at his complete change of manner. He goes farther, however, and apologizes to his relatives for his former selfish behavior. Miss Tremplar forgives him, and when the curtain finishes the story it looks like sure enough orange blossoms, with mutual anxiety for their early appearance.

The part of Horace Parker is most ably taken by Mr. Francis Compton. Miss Agnes Burton takes the part of his aunt, and Miss Peggy Dundas makes a very charming adopted sister and sweetheart. Mr. Herbert Leslie, as a tramp, plays a difficult part exceedingly well, and the Messengers from Mars, played by Mr. Clifford Winterston, are exceptionally well presented. Arthur Dicey and Bella, the "Parker's" maid, are played by Mr. Bruce Bredin and Miss Winifred Maguire, respectively. Fourteen other characters are all well portrayed by other members of the company.

The London Stage

By Elizabeth Montagu

Of the influx of American plays and adaptations from the French there seems to be no end, yet the failure over here of "Civilian Clothes," "Good Gracious, Annabelle," "Mention of Dinah," and "Lucky Love," must make the importer of American successes pause, while a "sea change" comes over some of the "adapted" French plays as soon as they cross the channel.

The answer to the perennial question asked by the English critics: "Why do managers reject English plays and import foreign ones?" may lie in the statement once made by a famous actor-manager of Canadian birth, who confessed he often rejected very good stuff because he knew it would not please his public. His action is certainly justified, for the reputation of French plays as a failure. Another answer occurred to me on reading Mr. Arthur Wimperis's "The Elopement," which has just been produced at the Comedy Theatre.

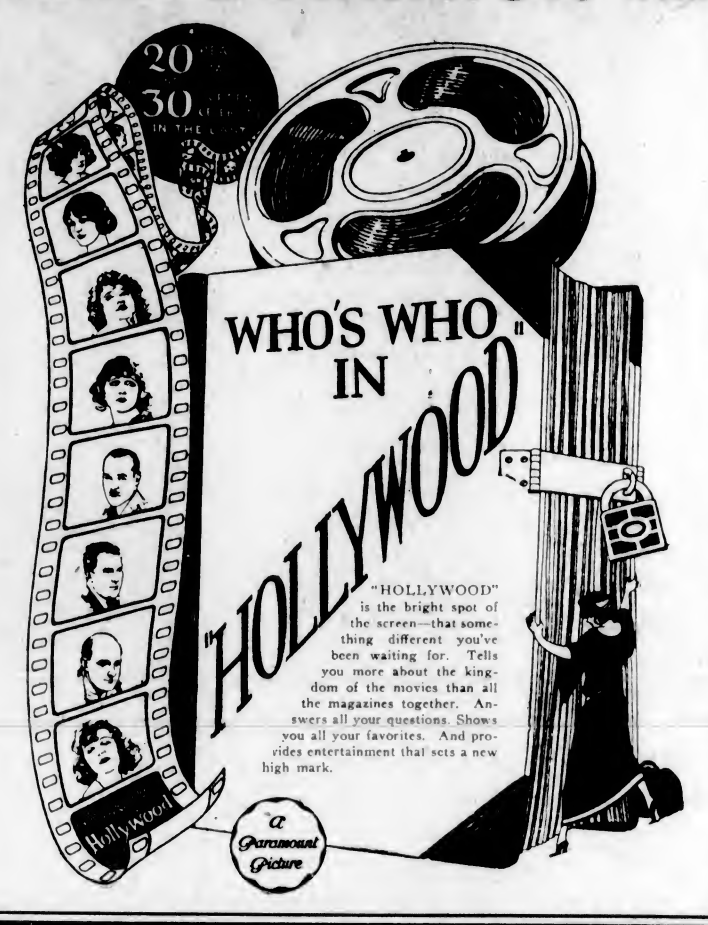

He said, "I was asked to adapt this play from the French because it was particularly suitable for Miss Edna Best."

There I think is the truth at last. Plays are not chosen because they are good, but because they are constructed or original, but because they are particularly suitable for Miss Edna Best. It seems a pity to dwarf this talented actress's powers by giving her always one sort of part to play, instead of letting her take her place with the rest and gain the versatility view of the public that is far more serious matter to be denied the opportunity of seeing clever, well-witted plays, because they do not "provide a good vehicle for Miss Best's skill and talents."

When I could take my eyes off this creation I realized that Helen Hayes was acting the part of the hysterical mother extremely well, as might have been expected of this thoroughly competent actress. That Mr. Hubert Harben was surprisingly disappointing as the garrulous husband, Mr. John Deverell inimitable as usual in the part of the soon-to-be-decimated fiancé of the enterprising daughter, Simone, whose name every one on the stage seemed to have much difficulty in pronouncing, and that Miss Marie Ault was almost as good in the part of the Dutch servant as she was in that of the Chinese amah in "East of Suez." The plot of "The Elopement" reduced to perimetric lines, is that a young man, who is a wife in the care of their sensible daughter when he leaves their villa at Biarritz on one of those business trips which, in French play, playwrights would have to lay down their pens forever. Simone discovers that her mother plans a motor trip with her without her, and she determines to bring her mother to reason through maternal anxiety for her welfare. Her visit to Gerald Fraja's yacht and presence of being a very modern fopper is complicated by the presence of the Princess

The Princess takes her wonderful frocks to Scotland, the fiancée is discarded by Simone, and the flighty wife falls into the arms of her husband in a Panglossian atmosphere at which Voltaire would have given one of his most twisted smiles. Altogether it is a very good play—for Miss Edna Best.

FORM SCHUBERT CLUB

Organization Effected Under Mr. Frederick King for Study of Choral Music

In the interest of and for the serious study of choral music, a society was formed last evening with the aim of preparing an extensive repertoire consisting of some of the best works of the European masters, as well as those of English and American composers. The organization, which is the result of a careful selection of voices, has been inaugurated for the reason that there is much talent here suitable for this class of work, and a musical public which will appreciate its efforts.

The society, which is to be known as the Schubert Club, is composed of ladies' voices, and Mr. Frederick King, the musical director of the club, has placed a limit upon the membership in order that the chorus be kept well balanced. Rehearsals will be held weekly, but it is not intended that the feature of public performance be included in the plans of the club for some time to come.

Hon. T. D. Pattullo Declares Government's Policies Directed Toward Encouraging Settlement

VANCOUVER, Sept. 13.—"To me the whole issue in British Columbia is to get more people," said Hon. T. D. Pattullo, provincial minister of lands, addressing the Laurier Club at luncheon today.

"The government is charged with extravagance, but we have maintained and strengthened the government service in the outlying parts of our province to encourage and assist newcomers. We have only 300,000 head of cattle in British Columbia and we import 100,000 head for our consumption. Yet the people say we have no room for more settlers. Little Switzerland has 3,000,000 head of stock, but we have two valleys up

North that could alone support more stock than that.

In reference to various land settlement, reclamation, industrial and irrigation loans, Hon. Mr. Pattullo said these policies were forced by the reconstruction period. While refusing to admit that these loans would entail loss, the minister said that the alternative policy would have been the loss of unemployment does such as prevailed in England.

"People forget that hordes of unemployed returned soldiers swarmed the parliament buildings steps in a mood where a word would have caused them to have razed them," he declared.

APPROVES-CITY MANAGER SCHEME

VICTORIA REALTY BOARD ENDORSES NEW SYSTEM

Luncheon Gathering Supports the "Yorath" Plan of Government—Members Debate Question

The Victoria Real Estate Board, at a luncheon yesterday noon in Spencer's dining-room, passed a resolution endorsing the plan of the City Council to appoint a city manager. The City Council is earnestly requested to appoint a city manager along the lines suggested by Mr. C. T. Yorath, city commissioner of Edmonton, Alberta, who addressed the Victoria Chamber of Commerce recently. Mr. Fred Landsberg submitted a proposal that the Board give its endorsement to a motion advocating the election of five men to serve on the Council in an honorary capacity, the five to elect their own chairman and the election of Mayor to be eliminated, and urging the Board to circulate a petition and secure three or four thousand signatures in favor of a city manager, but owing to lack of time the matter was left over until the next meeting.

The rally yesterday was a representative one, the following members being present: Messrs. James H. Cross, Alfred Ker, Leeming and Gillespie; Beaumont Boggs, E. H. Pierce, Alfred Carmichael, Percy R. Brown, Harold Brown, R. Wolfenden, John Musgrave, A. H. Harmon, Joseph C. Bridgman, Ralph Wilson, C. B. Innes, E. H. Wilson and Harold D. Patterson, the Board secretary. Mr. Alfred Carmichael, the president, occupied the chair. Mr. R. F. Blandy, municipal clerk of Oak Bay, and Mr. James Fairweather, of the city assessor's office, were among the guests.

The meeting took the form of a discussion on the address delivered by Mr. Yorath, who, in speaking of the "ideal" system of city administration, advanced the following proposals: A council elected by the people, or shareholders in the welfare of the community, to discuss, discuss and control questions of public policy, legislation and finance; and an experienced appointed commissioner or manager to carry out the decisions of the council, to supervise and control the administrative detail of all departments and to advise the council on all technical questions and finance.

Need for Civic Manager

Mr. James Forman, who opened the debate, expressed himself as thoroughly convinced of the necessity of having a civic manager in charge of the city. He said that perhaps if there had been such a man in charge there the people would know more about the John Street bridge. How many citizens knew when they voted that project the enormous sum that it would cost them before it was completed? If they had known, it is likely that they would not have voted for the bridge. The speaker referred to the limitations that the Provincial Government had placed upon municipalities. He did not speak in a political sense, but claimed that while it is said that 10 per cent of the people of British Columbia live in the municipalities, these very same districts do not even receive the share they should rightly receive of many taxes that the Government now controls. He contended that the municipalities only secured, apart from the land tax, the "crumbs that fall from the rich man's table."

Alderman Leeming said that it was obvious that a business manager was required when between two and one-half and three million dollars was being expended yearly in civic administration here. He pointed out that of this year's budget, totalling $2,466,558, the amount of $1,700,000 was money over which the City Council had no control. Many had the idea that the City Council was grossly extravagant, he said; but he had gone over the expenditures and found that the most drastic economies he could find would only lower the tax rate by one mill.

Revision of Taxation Basis
A complete revision of the basis of taxation was the first work that a civic manager would have to do, claimed Alderman Leeming. He again advanced his suggestion that the Dominion, Provincial and municipal authorities should come together and investigate and adopt a equitable basis. He referred to the land that was continuing to revert to the city of Victoria, stating that the more areas that fell into the city's hands the higher would be the taxes of those who continued to pay. He thought there would not be any privately owned vacant lots in Victoria three years from now unless taxation was placed on a new basis.

Mr. Frederick Landsberg warmly championed the city manager scheme, stating that, to his way of thinking, it was utterly impossible to have efficiency and desired results from an administration guided by ten aldermen of different schools and business training, temperaments and abilities. He instanced the case of the Canadian National Railways in selecting Sir Henry Thornton to take charge of the lines and apply business methods to a business institution. Sir Henry Thornton, he said, has been given the chance to bring the railroad out of the mire to investigate where the chances of saving money are, where expenses can be curtailed and investment of money to make the road pay.

"The only salvation of Victoria is for the city to have a mayor and aldermen who go into office for the honor of the position and act in an honorary capacity without remuneration, and let them appoint a person qualified to officiate as civic manager, presiding over all departments and conducting them on an efficient business basis," Mr. Landsberg claimed, as he quoted figures to show the necessity for a strong business administration at the City Hall.

In a few words, Mr. C. T. Cross referred to the reverted lands system, declaring that in his opinion the city should not dispose of reverted lands at less than their assessed value, as by so doing it worked a hardship on the owners of adjoining vacant properties. "The Reverted Land Commission at the City Hall has four employees, and yet it made one sale in one month. That transaction was the disposal of a piece of property assessed at $1,600, which was sold for $800 on time. How many men would continue a business making one sale per month? However, the owners of vacant properties, who today cannot dispose of their lands owing to the reverted lands system, being sold at a lower figure than they can offer their areas, will pay for the cost of the upkeep of that office in the City Hall," Mr. Cross said.

Mr. R. F. Blandy, clerk of Oak Bay municipality, stated that Mr. Yorath said that the assessments in Edmonton had been lowered from 119 millions to forty millions, while a further reduction of eight millions was anticipated soon. The assessments in "our" have been pared down to less than one third, but such has not been the case in Victoria. The city will not have reached a sound basis until the revision of land has stopped. Victoria will have to bring its assessments nearer to the rental value of the properties, or in closer accord with ability to pay. Many buildings today are not bringing in as much money as they formerly did, and assessments should be brought into line with their earning value," Mr. Blandy held.

Alderman Gillespie said that he favored the city manager system of government in preference to the system already in vogue. He thought that the real estate men of the city should take a definite stand in support of the move, and should outline the duties they had in mind for the proposed new appointee.

Does Not Condemn System

Making it quite clear that he was not opposed to the present system of municipal government, Mr. Beaumont Boggs said that he would support the city manager scheme. He did not condemn the system at the City Hall, but was of the opinion that it had been perverted in the past few years. He did not wish to cast a slur on the Council or School Board, because he believed that its members were doing the best they could and were carrying out their duties in a sincere manner.

School Trustees Brown said that he did not think that it would be in the interests of education or of the city to have the School Board controlled by either the City Council or government. He vigorously defended the expenditures of the School Board, and said that "it would be more to the point if more of our representative taxpayers would show their sincerity in civic matters by coming forward and offering themselves at election time, or stand behind those who have been placed in office."

In opening the meeting, President Carmichael said that the City of Victoria is a beautiful city, a place in which we can feel proud to live, and whose wonders we don't mind telling our friends about," Mr. Carmichael said.

Tokohama's Dead

TOKIO, Sept. 12.—Officials estimate the number of dead in Yokohama at 23,747, of which 144 were foreigners, including Chinese. Casualties at Yokohama naval base totalled 4,321.

The public is waiting for the fire insurance companies to take action. The companies, with capital aggregating 200,000,000 yen ($100,000,000 approximately) and reserves of 75,000,000, face estimated losses of 2,000,000,000 yen. They are compelled to await the decision of the banks in the matter of assistance. Meanwhile, only temporary buildings are being erected.

Earthquakes Cease

TOKIO, Sept. 13.—Relief was on the faces of the people today, for they had passed the first night free from earthquakes since the fatal first of September. It is estimated that during the week there were more than 1,000 shocks, 700 of them plainly felt and some severe enough to bring the fear of fresh destruction. The weather remains fine, enabling work to be expedited on temporary shelters.

The situation in Yokohama is appalling. Thousands are camped in the parks, with the most scanty supplies of food and water.

Cut Off From World

SHANGHAI, Sept. 13.—An Eastern News Agency report from Osaka today said the people of that city are frantic for news of relatives and friends in Tokio.

The report said there is no communication into Tokio yet, but that the telegraph office in the capital resumed flings to outside offices on September 7. As a result approximately 150,000 messages have been transmitted daily to be sent to outside points. Of those addressed to Osaka only 130 had reached Osaka on September 8.

In lieu of telegraph blanks, which are scarce, patrons are submitting messages written on handkerchiefs, gloves, cigarette packages and other articles which telegraphers are dispatching by mail.

Home Minister Goto and Mayor Maruta of Tokio are laying plans for a greater Tokio, to arise from the ashes of the old capital. They are making plans for a large harbor in Tokyo Bay to be built in the vicinity of Yettai Bridge and the lower reaches of the Sumida River.

A New City

A general widening of Tokio's streets is projected and provision is being made for a large park to be a civic centre, the undertaking to be aided by funds from the national treasury. It is expected definite plans for rebuilding will be published in a few days.

Japanese contributions to the relief fund, it is reported, total more than 15,000,000 yen ($7,500,000). Imports of cereals, beef and eggs are exempted from customs duties. It is also reported that ten thousand coolies have been employed in the devastated region to cremate bodies and that to date more than 60,000 have been buried. The Nippon Tempo News Service estimates the total.

It was stated officially today that Mr. Oliver had not been appointed in the Commission. It is considered likely that he will get the appointment, however.

Two Bodies Found

KENORA, Ont., Sept. 13.—The bodies of two men, both badly decomposed, have been found in the Shallow Lake district, north of Winnipeg River, according to reports received here. The throat of one man is reported to have been cut. Confirmation of the report has not been received here by police authorities.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Sept. 13.—Seizure of four thousand gallons of sixty-five overproof alcohol shipped to a fictitious address at St. Leonard's, N.B., from the United States, and denatured alcohol, and thus added to Canada for mechanical use, is reported here. The seizure is the biggest customs seizure ever made in New Brunswick. The alcohol is valued at $80,000.

for Inside Displays

SAYWARD, Sept. 13.—The Sayward Farmers' Institute held its third annual agricultural show yesterday, under most favorable conditions, on the spacious fields of Mr. H. O. Sacht, Sayward's oldest grower.

The exhibition of farm and garden vegetables, field crops, fruit, flowers, bottled fruit, etc., was held in three large tents covering nearly 1,000 square feet of bench space for the display of some seven hundred odd exhibits, some of which were wonderful collections of garden and field products. Outside, under shelter, were live stock exhibits.

The perfect arrangements and harmony apparent in all the departments of the show spoke volumes for its organization and management. At the entrance to the show grounds was a well-stocked and very efficient lunch counter operated by the Ladies' League, while the Girl Guides provided light refreshments in another tent, where ice cream sundaes, candies, lemonade, etc., were obtainable. The exhibits, which were early in place, tagged with a neat card displaying their section, class and number, filled every inch of space. COURTENAY PREPARES FOR FALL EXHIBITION

Arrangements for Fall Fair About Completed, and Indications Point to Most Successful Affair

COURTENAY, Sept. 12.—Arrangements for the Fall Fair to be held here on Tuesday and Wednesday next are in their final stages and everything points to this year's efforts meeting with the success anticipated.

There will be at least three exhibits in the district display section. One will be from Courtenay, one from Merriville-Granham and one from Comox. This is an innovation at the local fair and the district winning first place will hold a handsome cup, presented by Mr. Ben Hughes, for one year.

A splendid sports programme is being arranged and prizes and cash donations for the various events have been given by the merchants of Courtenay.

It is expected that the logging camps will close early on Wednesday next to allow the employees to attend the fair. Big crowds are expected from Cumberland, Union Bay, Denman Island and other points in the Valley. Mr. Felix Thomas reports that everything is going along nicely, and, given good weather, the attendance should establish a record.

WEST SAANICH W. I. HOLDS MEETING

Proceedings Taken in Connection With District Exhibitions—Talk on Fruit Crystallizing

SAANICH, Sept. 13.—The regular monthly meeting of the West Saanich Women's Institute, held in the rooms at Blugetta, was well attended, and many interesting reports were discussed. The president, Mrs. Osborne, occupied the chair.

In response to an invitation from the South Saanich Women's Institute, it was decided to enter an exhibit in the economics section of the Cottage Garden Exhibit to be held at the Temperance Hall, Saturday next. The suggestion of having each member of the institute pay $5 towards creating a fund to be given as an institute prize at the forthcoming Potato Fair was also adopted.

A special meeting will be called later in the month to arrange final details for catering at the Fall show at Saanichton.

Mrs. Nimmo's paper on "Crystallizing Fruit" was timely and interesting. As the work requires quite a lengthy period of time it was not possible to give a demonstration. Mrs. Nimmo very kindly brought some samples of her candied fruit. After giving explicit directions on how to prepare and cork the various kinds, she served samples of candied orange, grape fruit and cherries, which called forth many expressions of approval.

At the close of her talk Mrs. Nimmo was given a hearty vote of thanks by those present.

A military five hundred drive was held in the Institute Hall at Blugetta, under the auspices of the West Saanich Women's Institute, on Wednesday evening.

Six tables were occupied in play, and the following were winners: First prizes, Mrs. Huxton, Mrs. Freeland, Mrs. Guy, Mr. Fox; consolation, Miss Wright, Mrs. Haddon, Mr. Geo. Sluggitt and Mr. Hagan.

DUNCAN SCHOOL BOARD IN MONTHLY SESSION

Alteration to Plans of New Building Found Necessary—Will Erect Shelter For Children

DUNCAN, Sept. 13.—The Duncan Consolidated School Board met in regular monthly session last evening, there being in attendance also Inspector Stewart and the principals of the high and public schools.

It was reported by Chairman W. M. Dwyer that the plans for the new high school, prepared by the board's architect, were not acceptable to the Education Department, and that certain changes would have to be made, which would add somewhat to the cost of the building.

A request was received from parents residing in districts served by school bus transportation system that shelters be erected at intervals for the benefit of children awaiting the arrival of buses. The board decided to grant the request and to charge the cost of same against the vote for transportation, which was entirely by the taxpayers of North Cowichan.

Considerable discussion took place on the question of charging high school fees for pupils who were "repeaters." Principal Thorpe said that only the particularly bright students completed the course in three years. He believed his school was comparatively free from repeaters of the "water" type. Inspector Stewart agreed that less than 10 per cent of the pupils could matriculate in three years, even in the large cities, where the teachers did not have to cover the multitude of subjects which had to be handled by two teachers in Duncan. No action was taken in the matter, by the board.

A grant of $50 was made toward the sports fund of the Consolidated School.

ORANGE LODGE AT DUNCAN

DUNCAN, Sept. 13.—A meeting was held last evening in the K. of P. lodge room for the purpose of arranging for the formation of a branch of the Loyal Orange Lodge in Duncan. The Provincial organizer of the order, Mr. Jago, addressed the gathering and there were present twenty members and ex-members of the lodge. There was formerly a branch of the Orange order here, but at the beginning of the war several members who were physically fit joined up, and not enough members were left to carry on, and the charter was lost. It is planned to institute the new lodge on October 17.

SHOOTING AFFAIR AT PORT ALBERNI

Seeker After Liquor Smashes in Door and is Shot by the Enraged Householder

PORT ALBERNI, Sept. 12.—Jim McDaniel, foreman of Alberni Pacific Logging Company logging camps, was shot and seriously wounded by George Banks of this city, at 2 o'clock this morning. Banks conducts a cleaning establishment and was asleep on the premises when McDaniel and a party of friends arrived in an automobile and demanded admittance for the alleged purpose of obtaining drink.

Being denied entrance, McDaniel smashed in the door, whereupon Banks fired a shot from a revolver, the bullet lodging in the intruder's groin. The wounded man is in a hospital and Banks, who was apprehended shortly after the shooting, is at liberty on bail of $5,000.

EPIDEMIC OF SICKNESS

DUNCAN, Sept. 12.—Dr. Watson, public health officer for the city, has issued public warning that all drinking water should be boiled before use. This action is taken in consequence of a severe epidemic of sickness now prevalent. The doctor says that this should be done irrespective of the source of supply, well, spring or city water being equally dangerous in an unboiled state. The complaint is common to all sections of the island, and consequent upon the extremely dry season. It is predicted that it will reach its most severe stage in October.

LIBRARY HAS BOOKS ON FIRST TOURISTS

Early Travelers Who Came to British Columbia by Land and Water Provide Thrilling Reading

With steamers and trains bearing tourists to British Columbia by the thousands, and automobiles pouring in with thousands more, it is interesting to look back upon the men who were the first tourists to this part of the world—the intrepid travelers who found their way here by hazardous sea routes, or struggled overland by mountain passes into the unknown regions.

The thrill that the first adventurers experienced does not come in the same measure to those who view the British Columbia first through the windows of a Pullman or from the deck of an ocean liner, or the upstair of a motor car. One hears now of the enthusiastic travelers who come out to see "the great West," only to give themselves up to the excitement of a bridge game or the snow-clad towers of the Rockies.

The Victoria Public Library has on its shelves some of the works which describe the various visits to what is now British Columbia many years ago.

Many Tell Same Stories
Lawrence J. Burpee, in his "Search for the Western Sea," which is a story of the exploration of North-western Canada, divides his story into three parts: first, "The Northern Attempts to make the Northwest Passage, and some of the Hudson's Bay Company's explorations by land, as well as Samuel Hearne's discovery of the Coppermine River; second, "The Southern Gateway" through which came La Verendrye and a number of French explorers; third, "The Route to the Sea," in which he describes the journeys of Alexander Mackenzie and Thompson. As far as British Columbia is concerned, the last two headings are the more interesting.

Great numbers of writers have related stories of the same intrepid adventures. Perhaps one of the most interesting of these narratives is that by Agnes C. Laut, "Vikings of the Pacific," the adventures of the explorers who came from the west to the eastward. It goes back to early times, and tells of Hering, the Dane, the outlaw hunters of Russia; Ben-yowsky, the Polish pirate; Cook and Vancouver, the English navigators; Gray, of Boston, who discovered the Columbia River; and Drake, Ledward and others on the West Coast of America. Miss Laut's "Pioneers of the Pacific Coast," Volume 22 of the "Chronicles of Canada," edited by George M. Wrong, gives sketches of Cook, Vancouver, Mackenzie, and others.

"Pathfinders of the West," by the same writer, is largely a story of the fur trade, and the search for the western sea.

Within the last year or two several writers from much the same material as made use of in the works already mentioned, have written books on the same subjects. Among these authors are Paul Leland Haworth, in his "Trailmakers of the Northwest"; Mordun H. Long, of Saskatchewan, in his "Knights of the Wilderness"; W. E. Wallace in his "By Star and Compass, Tales of the Explorers of Canada"; and Edmund Spenser, in his "Vancouver's Discoveries of the Pacific Coast," a narrative of an expedition in 1863 from the Atlantic to the Pacific with a view to exploring a route across the continent to British Columbia. The path chosen by the two explorers was by way of the Tete Jaune, and although they did not succeed in forcing their way west through the Cariboo, they did overcome the almost insurmountable obstacles of a passage southward to Kamloops.

Sir William Francis Butler, an English lieutenant-general with strong prejudices, outspoken, and an insatiable appetite for travel, wrote, "The Wild Northland," the story of a Winter Journey across northern North America with dogs in 1872, and "The Great Lone Land," a tale of travel and adventure in the North-west of Canada.

Warburton Pike's travels are of more recent date. The fact that he was a former resident of Victoria makes his works of a greater local interest. He wrote "The Harren Grounds of Northern Canada," and "Through the Sub-Arctic Forest," the latter being a record of a canoe trip from Port Wrangel to the Pelly Lakes and down the Yukon River to the Bering Sea. These volumes are still of great interest, giving an account of northern British Columbia.

Miss Agnes Deans Cameron's book, "The New North," an account of a woman's journey through Canada to the Arctic, has a special local interest, too, on account of the fact that Miss Cameron was a native daughter of Victoria, and lived here to within a short time of making the journey.

"The Cariboo Trail," another book by Miss Agnes Laut, is a chronicle of the gold fields of British Columbia. No mention has been made in this article of histories or the records published by the Geological Survey, the aim being to give a few of the books likely to be of the most interest to the general reader.

A MEATLESS LUNCHEON

The following tested recipe solves the problem of a tasty luncheon without meat:

Escalloped Macaroni With Cheese
1½ cupsful Borden's St. Charles milk
3 cupsful cooked, drained macaroni cut in two-inch lengths.
1½ cupsful grated American cheese.

1½ tablespoonfuls flour.

1½ tablespoonfuls butter or butter substitute.

¼ teaspoonful salt, scant.
¼ teaspoonful pepper.
Few grains paprika.

Make a white sauce of the flour, butter, seasonings and the milk undiluted. Stir in the macaroni. Thoroughly oil a rather shallow baking dish, put in a layer of the macaroni, then one of the cheese, continuing in this way until all is used and making the last layer one of cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until browned, about thirty-five minutes.

SKIPPER ASSUMES TREMENDOUS TASK

MASTER MUST MAKE HIS DECISION IN TEN SECONDS

Yet Captain Smith, of Berengaria, Enjoys Every Moment of His Great Responsibility

When a disaster comes at sea, a captain has perhaps ten seconds in which to decide on his course of action. Those who may afterwards be called upon to sit in judgment on the matter are allowed many months to arrive at their conclusions. On the sea it is always a case of "You never can tell." Anything may happen, anywhere, any time. Life afloat is, of course, hard, but (writes Captain C. A. Smith, captain of the Berengaria, the world's second greatest liner) with all my responsibilities, I enjoy every moment of it. Men who have played the lily darkness ahead, who can smell an iceberg miles away, who have learnt to watch for danger that others may sleep in safety—these men see life afloat and see it whole.

Constant warfare with the elements simplifies the sailor. He knows how to observe a sense of proportion. He does not rave at the blistering sun which makes his decks as hot as a furnace. Nor does he curse at the driving hail which cuts his face.

The captain of a big ocean liner has many ticklish times, but if he absolutely refuses to worry these won't harm him. On the bridge his brain must be wide awake and his imagination fast asleep. As an illustration, take the most exciting incident in my whole career. During the war I was once bringing the Aquitania down Channel. On board were 6,000 troops and 1,000 crew. You may well say, "What an awful responsibility." It was, but on the bridge that was the last thing I had to think about (shut off imagination). I resolutely shut off my imagination, full-stopped it, and concentrated my whole being on the job in hand, which was to guide my precious cargo and my splendid ship to her haven.

U-Boat Adventures

My business was to outwit the German submarines, which I knew were all around me. My officers and I were peering over the bridge, watching every yard of sea. Suddenly, quick as the lightning flash, a torpedo appeared from nowhere, and I had to decide in one second what to do. I did it, and the torpedo missed what would have been the biggest casualty list of the war. A captain of a big passenger liner is always on duty, so to speak, from the time he leaves port until he reaches the other side. The only time he relaxes is when he hands his giant ship over to the marine superintendent. "Port to port" is the captain's spell of duty. Obviously he must sleep at sea, but metaphorically he does so with one leg out of the bunk.

Before I leave the bridge, I make sure of the ship's position and record it. I prepare my "captain's night orders," wherein is noted any alteration of course, and directions when I am to be called. There are always some cautionary remarks to the officer on watch, e.g., as to open ports and fog. If, near land, the precise position of the ship must be marked on the chart.

Precautions

The compass must be corrected for any deviation, and steps must be taken to ensure that the ship is held properly on her course. The junior officer on watch must be made equally conversant with everything. Even he must be prepared to deal with all emergencies. On every Cunard liner a special officer is detailed to supervise the actual steering of the ship. When fog descends, or even threatens, the captain instantly goes on the Berengaria's bridge. This is the universal rule for a master during a fog. Under my feet are 32,000 tons and 4,000 people, who have implicit trust in me. Whole families are sleeping with the same sense of security as in London.

My officers and I are dim shadows silhouetted against the driving fog, which writes and twists like some awful gigantic ghost. Every nerve is taut, the engines at stand-by or eased down. At regular intervals our whistle—sounding hoarse and acrid—pierces the black night—splits the dead silence. Far away, I hear an answering signal. I know exactly what I am going to do, but the skipper's anxiety in a fog is, "Does the other fellow know?" That's the fog problem. There is no room for imagination on a bridge.

Girls Fire Ship

Once, years ago, on one of my ships some girls, smoking in bed, set their cabin on fire. If I began to think of such risks I should lose my nerve. My job is the ship, and not young women's cigarettes.

On the Berengaria's bridge I have the feeling that under me is the safest ship afloat. She is in reality one ship built inside another. In times of less tension I have many other duties, for as captain I am, ipso facto, judge, jury, lawyer and acting officer at law. When on the Austrian-New York route—I have myself buried as many as sixteen or seventeen returning emigrants—Southern Europeans who were suffering from tuberculosis.

In the Cunard Line there are none but Britons, and in a slight corner give me the Briton every time. He works independently when others get cowed. He is not afraid of onerous jobs. The chief reason why the German submarine failed was that, as they told me, they hated lonely jobs.

U.S. DESTROYERS FAR OFF COURSE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Admiral Coughlin, commanding the United States fleet, reported to the Navy Department today that no adequate explanation had been given for the unusual position of the seven American destroyers when they were wrecked on the California coast Saturday night.

He declared the squadron was far off its prescribed course and was steaming in a fog at twenty knots.

QUEST OF APPLE LEADS SHIP HERE

ORESTES, OF BLUE FUNNEL LINE, ARRIVES

Oldest Ship in Big Fleet Will Load British Columbia Fruit for Homebound Voyage

In quest of the ripened apple, the Blue Funnel steamer Orestes arrived last night from Liverpool. Equipped with cooled space that enables her to carry fruit for thousands of miles without rotting, the luminary last voyage was to Australia, whence she returned with cargo of the fruit. Then she was ordered to British Columbia, and when she sails from these waters in mid-October, her cooled hold will again be full of the same commodity. After calling at American Pacific Coast ports on her way a series of other voyages will again to British Columbia after the Okanagan crop of next fall.

By the voyage from Liverpool that ended here last night the Orestes cooled liquid and general cargo. On account of the former, all customary calls at American ports were omitted, the vessel steaming direct for Victoria from the Panama Canal. She will be in port all day today discharging, and will shift to Vancouver tomorrow.

Oldest Blue Funnel

The Orestes has the distinction of being the oldest ship in the Blue Funnel fleet. Built in 1894 by Scott & Company, Greenock, she has many years behind her at sea, in the course of which she has frequently visited this port.

Her age, however, is no bar to her experience, vouches her master, Capt. Evan Jones, who declares she is a very fine vessel indeed. Ships like the Orestes are not built nowadays, he says. The same material is not put into them. As proof of the substantial qualities of his command, he points to the fact that she arrived here last night two days before she was due.

Capt. Jones is himself a stranger to this neighborhood, although familiar with San Francisco and Portland in the old sailing days, he has never previously visited Victoria or Puget Sound.

The officers and crew of the Orestes were astonished on arrival here at the Japanese earthquake news. The vessel left the canal several days before the disaster happened and had gleaned no information of it through the medium of the wireless en route.

Origin of Matter

Scientific Correspondent London Times

What happens to the waste radiation in space? The earth catches less than a two thousand millionth part of the solar radiation, and this seems to have been going on for hundreds of millions of years. The fraction we absorb is of vital importance to us; the rest is lost to space.

These questions were raised by Sir Oliver Lodge in an address to the staff of the National Physical Laboratory, recently printed in Nature. He insisted on our right to repel the idea that so much energy was wasted. He rejected a suggestion made by Sir W. Siemens as to the possible concentration of all the radiation by total reflection at an ether boundary, on the ground that he cannot imagine an ether boundary, a physical limit to space. He has offered the extraordinary interesting speculation that light (using the word to cover not merely visible rays, but all radiations, including X-rays and other forms of short wave radiations) somehow generating matter.

Pressure of Light

Light is known to exercise pressure, as was first shown by a little toy made by Crookes, which spun round when light fell on it. Its advancing wave-front possesses a momentum which it transmits to any obstacle that either reflects or absorbs it. And so when a wave-front from any of the stars is advancing through "empty" space, maybe for hundreds of years, according to the third Law of Motion—the universal truth of which must be assumed until it is negated—there must be a longitudinal stress in the stream of light, with a reaction on the source at one end and on the advancing wave-front at the other.

The source is always material, for light emanates only from a vibrating or rotating electron. But what happens at the other end, to accord with the customary experience that a line of stress always stretches from one piece of matter to another? When the beam reaches the earth or the matter of a comet or any other form of matter, there is no difficulty, for the reaction in normal fashion is exercised on the resisting body. But when the advancing end is still in free ether, all that can sustain the reaction is the wave-front itself, travelling with the speed of light. According to Sir Oliver Lodge, therefore, the wave-front has one of the properties of matter; it has the power of sustaining stress. The beam consists of associated electric and magnetic "vectors" (quantities with direction, length, and sense); the electron consists of motions character-

Light is known to exercise pressure, as was first shown by a little toy made by Crookes, which spun round when light fell on it. Its advancing wave-front possesses a momentum which it transmits to any obstacle that either reflects or absorbs it. And so when a wave-front from any of the stars is advancing through "empty" space, maybe for hundreds of years, according to the third Law of Motion—the universal truth of which must be assumed until it is negated—there must be a longitudinal stress in the stream of light, with a reaction on the source at one end and on the advancing wave-front at the other.

The source is always material, for light emanates only from a vibrating or rotating electron. But what happens at the other end, to accord with the customary experience that a line of stress always stretches from one piece of matter to another? When the beam reaches the earth or the matter of a comet or any other form of matter, there is no difficulty, for the reaction in normal fashion is exercised on the resisting body. But when the advancing end is still in free ether, all that can sustain the reaction is the wave-front itself, travelling with the speed of light. According to Sir Oliver Lodge, therefore, the wave-front has one of the properties of matter; it has the power of sustaining stress. The beam consists of associated electric and magnetic "vectors" (quantities with direction, length, and sense); the electron consists of motions character-lately rotatory. These two kinds of motion may not be entirely distinct. The former must advance; the latter stays still in space. But they may be casually connected. It is known that the electron generates light; Sir Oliver Lodge suggests that light may generate an electron.

Matter and Radiation

Radiation has certainly many effects on matter. It can produce the irregular movements known as heat. It can stimulate chemical change as in photography. More recently it has been found to be capable of throwing out an electron from matter with an amount of energy that seems to depend on the quality and not on the quantity—that is to say, on the wavelength of the radiation and not on its intensity. Sir William Bragg has called attention to an apparent interchange between radiation and matter which is suggestive. The impact of a beta-particle (a definite piece of matter emits X-rays, but the impact of X-rays, similarly, emits a beta-particle. The energy of the original beta-particle and that of the one liberated, or called into existence by the X-rays, are practically identical. It seems as if the same beta-particle or electron had gone out of existence when it generated the X-rays and had been recreated in another place, the link through space being a radiation of definite wave-length travelling with the speed of light. The facts do not yet justify the positive assumption that one particle has gone out of existence and another come into existence at a distance, the intermediate agency being a series of other waves travelling through space with the velocity of light; but they are apparently agreeable to that interpretation and difficult to reconcile with any other interpretation.

Sir Oliver Lodge has made a calculation as to the weight of matter that the earth would receive from the sun annually if light were thus transformed into matter. This would amount to eighty thousand tons if none of it were dissipated as heat. Similarly, according to his suggestion, matter may be made to speak, crystallising out of radiations in the recesses of space. In addition to the processes of destruction and disintegration going on in the universe, there may also be processes of building up and construction. The metaphysician may say that the suggestion is much ado about nothing, as the distinction between "matter" and "energy" is unreal. But at least there is a vast distinction in physical observation between the directed straight lines of radiation and the rotations of electrons. And the new suggestion seems to build a possible bridge between the two phenomena.

DENIES REPORT OF ABANDONING OPTION

Statement That Granby Company Had Declined George Property at Stewart Claimed Incorrect

Concerning the purchase of the George group of claims near Stewart, in which property several Victorians are largely interested, The Portland Canal News of a recent date makes the following reference:

A short time ago there appeared an article in The Vancouver Province by E. A. Haggan, to the effect that the Granby company have thrown up their option bond on the George copper property, situated up the Bear River. This report is entirely incorrect. The Granby company have in no way, shape or form released this property. They still control it and have, during the summer, had their geologist, Dr. Bancroft, make a thorough examination of it, as a result of which they have planned a campaign of development work next summer, as well as having authorized this year certain trail and assessment work.

The mistake, however, may have been due to the fact that it had been the intention to carry out more extensive work on the property. This was impossible, owing to the untimely death of Mr. Richard George, making it necessary to have the will probated before a clear title could be handed over to the bank for placement in escrow. It was not until the 8th day of August that this probate could be completed, making it too late this year to undertake any serious development. However, now that the papers are all in order, extending the time for the Granby company by another year, the report circulated by Haggan's article can be unequivocally denied.

AWAITING ADVICE AS TO STATESMAN'S VISIT

Welsh Society Receives Word That Request of Local Body Will Be Placed in Proper Hands

At the meeting of the Victoria Cymdeithion Society held in Harmony Hall, Mr. D. Evans, the secretary, read a letter received by him from Mr. J. D. McCarthy at Toronto, who is acting as official agent for the proposed visit to this country of Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, which read as follows:

"The private secretary of the Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George called a few days ago for Canada to complete the arrangements for Mr. Lloyd George's tour. I will bring your letter before his representative, Sir Alfred Cote, after which I will advise you. Yours faithfully, J. O. McCarthy."

During the evening a moment's silence was observed in memory of the late Stanley Davies, son of Mr. Gwyn Davies, a staunch member of the society. A letter of condolence will be sent to the bereaved family. The musical programme closed with the singing of the Welsh hymn, "Hen Wlad Fy Nhadau."

A novel competition took place when an invitation was extended to members of the audience to give their views on "How to improve the Welsh Society." A committee of three declared Mr. W. Jones' suggestion that "the children be encouraged more" to be the winning suggestion. The following was the programme: Vocal solo by Miss Lewis; pianoforte solo by Miss Gladys Kinney; hymn, "Aberystwyth"; recitation by Miss Phyllis Williams; impromptu speech competition; duet, "Juanita," Misses May Lewis and May Thomas. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. D. Thomas and W. Jones. The secretary welcomed to the meeting Welsh members of the crew of the Siberian Prince, now in drydock.

Appeals for More Men In Church Work In the Far North

SASKATOON, Sept. 13.—Bishop Springer, of the Yukon, whose diocese extends as far as the North Pole as the Anglican Church has been able to penetrate, yesterday voiced an appeal for more men in church work when he spoke before the Nineteenth Triennial Synod of the Anglican ecclesiastical province.

Vividly he pictured conditions in the Far North and declared the Indians and Eskimos were crying for missionaries to teach them, yet the church could not come to their help because of the shortage of workers. He said the natives were mixing with the worst element in the white race, and they needed protection.

SEEK PRESENCE OF PRINCE AT DANCE

REGINA, Sept. 13.—The following telegram has been sent to Lord Renfrew:

"Great War Veterans of Saskatchewan, including a whole bunch of Renfrewshire men, are staging a big harvest supper and dance at Parliament Buildings, Regina, Saturday afternoon and evening. We calculate that affair would just naturally be complete if you could be induced to stop over with us, if only for one little dance. We'll respect the absence of the other title.
